The most agonizing, humiliating, itching, scaly and burning Eczemas are cured by the Cuticura Remedies, when physicians and all other remedies fail.

I have been afflicted since last March with a skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with scabs and sores and the itching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your CUTICURA REMEDIES highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial using CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally and RESOLVENT internally for four months. The commissioner of the general land office has approved a patent to the state of Oregon for 11 92 acres of swamp lands in the Lakeview land district embraced in approved list No 5

The land office has issued instructions to Special Agents Elliott and Armington to re examine some 38 000 acres of land in Harney Valley Oregon alleged to be not swamp, included within approved list No 5

DEPARTMENT RED TAPE

A Second Report by the Select Committee on Business Methods.

WASHINGTON March 28.—Senator Cockrell chairman of the select committee on the business of the executive departments today submitted to the senate a second report

The committee in the previous report suggested as the most feasible methods of business that the secretaries of the treasury and war should appoint commissioners in their respective departments to consider and revise the methods of business These commissioners were afterward appointed and their reports which were transmitted to the committee, were laid before the senate to-day as a part of the committee's report

Secretary Fairchild in a letter dated January 18 last transmitting the treasury commission's report says "The commission has reported to me from time to time recommendations which I have caused to be put into operation or which have been adopted by the bureau officers of their own motion

The senate committee endorses several recommendations of the commission There is great useless and unnecessary red tape in the dispatch of certain work in the war department the committee says and by way of illustration shows that one specified case was handled by the officers and clerks seventy six times and including the messenger service nine y nine times

With reference to this case the report says With all due deference it does seem to the committee that in the transfer on and application of this item of business it has passed through too many hands and through the same hands too often and that there have been too many entries records and notations and too much unnecessary time and labor consumed and expended and that a much simpler and shorter system could be devised which would be equally accurate and consume much less time and cause much less expenditure of labor

The committee in concluding its report says While we have not accomplished all that we desired, yet we hope the good work already begun will be more successfully and perfectly carried out by the standing committee of the senate on the organization conduct and expenditures of the executive departments, recently created

SENATE PROCEEDINGS

A Proposition Looking to a More Equitable Division of the Committeeships

WASHINGTON March 28.—In the senate Sherman offered a resolution which went over for the opportunity of enquiring to wait upon the president and inquire if he has any other business to lay before the senate

Cockrell from the select committee to inquire into the methods of business in the executive departments made a final report and made a statement in regard to the condition of business in some branches of the public service

At the close of Cockrell's remarks the vice president said the report would be laid on the table and printed

Objection was made to the report going on record as a precedent for the transaction of regular business out a called session

Cockrell explained that the regular session had given permission for the presentation of this report at the called session

This was objected to

Call offered a resolution which was laid on the table for the present to declare

First—That the committees of the senate should be organized with reference to the equality of the states and their senators in the rights privileges and powers of the senate

Second—That senators shall not be assigned to more than one of the following committees Appropriations, military affairs naval affairs, judiciary foreign relations finance, postoffice, public lands and commerce and every senator shall be assigned to one of them

Third—That the seniority of service shall give preference in the assignment of the committees unless otherwise ordered by the senate

Fourth—That each of the above committees shall be composed of eleven senators

When the senate was sitting with closed doors the resolution allowing a clerk for Senator Vance was reported from the committee on contingent expenses and adopted

Farts from the library committee reported the preamble and resolution which were adopted that the senate accept the invitation of the committee having in charge the centennial inauguration of George Washington to participate in the celebration and that a committee be appointed to represent the senate

At 5 o'clock M the senate adjourned

COCOON RAISING

Annual Report of the Woman's Silk Culture Association

WASHINGTON March 28.—The report of the president and treasurer of the Woman's Silk Culture Association for the past year to the commissioner of agriculture has been printed Mrs John Lucas is president It says To the intelligent observer the rapid progress of this industry is impossible Orchards of mulberry trees must be grown to perfection that will admit of the picking of the leaves before the first real start can begin to the industry During the past few years much of the work has been of a diffusive character yet leading to great results and even with a few trees people have been learning to raise cocoons and tree planting is becoming a systemized effort Until this is general no increase of production will occur

The United States could in a very short time raise not only its own silk but much more and this once accomplished at least $50 000 000 per annum would be gained Yet the protection of a few raises a hue and cry against this industry though there is no reason climatic or otherwise why it could not be successfully planted

The report of the treasurer Mrs H L Taylor shows that during the year nearly 2 000 cocoons were bought of the persons in Arkansas Florida Georgia Illinois Indiana Iowa Kansas Kentucky Maryland Michigan Minnesota Missouri Nebraska New Jersey New York North Carolina Ohio Pennsylvania South Carolina Virginia and West Virginia These were distributed to 3686 mulberry trees in nineteen states as follows Florida Georgia Illinois Indiana Kansas Kentucky Maryland Massachusetts Michigan Missouri New York North Carolina Iowa Oregon Pennsylvania Texas Virginia West Virginia and Wisconsin

THE EXCLUSION LAW

Arguments in the Case of Chae Chan Ping Begun in the Supreme Court

WASHINGTON March 28.—The argument has begun in the supreme court of the United States in the case of Chae Chan Ping appellant vs the United States brought to this court on appeal from the United states court of California Ex Governor Hoadly opened the argument for the appellant The arguments will consume the entire day, and probably run over until to morrow

In the beginning of his argument for the appellant Hoadly stated the facts relative to Ping's arrival in this country his departure and subsequent attempt to return as recited in his brief

Hoadly spoke for one hour and twenty minutes and was followed by Attorney General Johnson Johnson's argument was confined to the points raised in his brief

At the close of Johnson's argument, Stephen M White addressed the court He spoke for twenty five minutes and made a forcible presentation of the government's case His argument was based upon the points contained in the joint brief filed by himself and Swift and already published Swift asked inasmuch as his colleague had not consumed all of the time allotted to him that he be allowed to make a few remarks and the permission was accorded him

Solicitor General Jenks then addressed the court on the basis of the argument in his brief

At the conclusion of Solicitor General Jenks's argument Swift spoke for five minutes He said the only question at issue was as to the absolute sovereignty of the United States in its dealings with other nations and the supreme court he said had decided cases analogous to this over and over again He spoke of the deep interest the Pacific coast felt in the case and briefly set forth the points of the government's case

Carter of the counsel for Chae Chan Ping closed the argument speaking in the line of the brief prepared jointly by Governor Hoadly and himself

THE SESSION DRAWING TO A CLOSE

The President Not Expected to Require the Services of the Senate Much Longer

SAN FRANCISCO March 28.—The Examiner's Washington special says It is not in probable that the extra session of the senate, which convened March 5 will close on Saturday of this week Quite a number of the senators are anxious to get away

Mr Sherman to-day offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of two senators to wait upon the president and inquire if he has any other business to lay before the senate The resolution went over until to-morrow but it is expected to pass soon after the senate meets and the president will inform them that their presence will not be needed after the 30th inst

A senator who spoke with the president upon this subject to-day asked General Harrison what action he purposed taking in regard to the appointment of the successor to the late Justice Matthews of the supreme court General Harrison said that the senate need not wait on that account There are several sections of country that are clamoring for the appointment

The president prefers to move slowly in the matter and to give everybody a patient hearing

In addition to the vacancies on the supreme bench there are yet to be appointed the first assistant secretary of the state department the first assistant secretary of the interior department the land commissioner and the Indian commissioner the public printer the comptroller of the currency six auditors two comptrollers of the United States treasurer and the solicitor of the treasury as well as scores of first class postmasters and custom house officials who need not necessarily be confirmed until the next meeting of congress

HALSTEAD REJECTED

Five Republicans Voted With the Democrats.

REVENGE THEIR ONLY MOTIVE

Removals of Fourth Class Postmasters—The President Again Overwhelmed With Visitors—Only One Nomination Yesterday

WASHINGTON March 28 The executive session of the senate lasted between two and three hours this afternoon and was confined largely to the discussion of the nomination of Murat Halstead to be minister to Germany Before that came up the nominations of John C New to be consul general to London and Lewis Wolfley to be governor of Arizona which were pending were confirmed

The final attempt of the opposition to defeat News's confirmation was based upon the assertion that his paper the Indianapolis Journal had refused a contract for printing upon the private character of President Cleveland The charge was promptly denied by Senator Voorhees of Indiana and the nomination was confirmed

The committee on foreign affairs favorably reported all of the diplomatic nominations of yesterday but in the case of Halstead the report was not unanimous On the motion to confirm his nomination the nays were in the majority Senators Feller, Plumb Ingalls Farwell and Cullom voting with the democrats

Sherman moved to reconsider the vote, and on that motion a long debate ensued in the course of which the grounds of objection to Halstead were disclosed When the senate refused to enter upon an investigation of the election of Senator Payne of Ohio Halstead who is paper the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette had strongly urged the nomination made uncomplimentary allusions to the republicans who voted against the investigation The feeling against him on the part of the senators who fell under his displeasure at that time is very bitter and one of them is reported to have said to President Harrison this morning that Halstead could not be confirmed that the senators whom he had criticised would not vote for him The motion to reconsider was pending when the senate adjourned

The votes on the confirmation were taken before any speeches were made

GERMAN PRESS COMMENT

BERLIN March 28.—The nomination of Mr Halstead as United States minister to Germany gives general satisfaction

FOURTH CLASS POSTMASTERS.

Only Necessary Appointments Being Made by the Department

WASHINGTON March 28.—First Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson was questioned to day concerning certain newspaper criticisms directed against his policy in the appointment of fourth class postmasters

In answer he said Practically all the changes that have been made for other than political reasons A large number of appointments made during the last administration were bad A considerable number have been found to be delinquent in their accounts Other changes have been made in order to secure better locations for the offices and in many cases the appointments have been made with a view to removal of offices from the vicinity of saloons In every case of removal there has been a good and sufficient cause therefor

Perhaps he added it is not generally known that any predecessor within a month or two weeks prior to March 4 made over a thousand appointments of fourth class postmaster for the purpose practically of forcing them upon the administration This course has not been pursued to my knowledge by any previous administration During the last several weeks of President Arthur's term not a single fourth class postmaster was appointed except in rare instances where the exigencies of the service demanded it and when Postmaster General Hatton resigned there were more than 3000 presidential nominations in his office The commissions of the thousand appointees of my predecessor were of course withheld and these vacancies with others are now being filled as rapidly as possible

BUSY DAY IN LEGAL CIRCLES

An Important Decision Rendered Yesterday in the United States Court.

An Old Will Filed—The Tall Question—Demurrer Sustained—Want Their Pay—Went to Jail—Notes.

Judge Deady rendered a decision yesterday in the United States district court in the case of the Albina Ferry Company against the ship Imperial and the steamer S. G. Reed. The latter craft were libeled by the ferry company to recover damages for injuries inflicted in a collision. The boat was towing the ship up the river, and they came in contact with the cable of the ferry, and tore it loose from the shore, and the ferry boat was injured some $600. The court dismissed the libel, it having been shown that the cable of the ferry company was held up within 13½ feet of the surface at 18 feet from the end of the boat and 150 feet from the shore, in water over 30 feet in depth, and to the vicinity of the approach of sea-going vessels to the Irving dock, and was therefore a material obstruction to navigation.

The court said "the use of cables in the maintenance of ferries on the Willamette river appears to be a great convenience, if not a necessity. This being so, it may be said that ships and other means of navigation, should be required as in the case of bridges, to yield some portion of their abstract right to move at pleasure on or through the water, for the benefit of the ferries. But the legislature is the only authority that can be invoked for this purpose. So long as the cable is used without the sanction of the legislature and the court finds as a matter of fact that in the localities before it the cable is a material obstruction to navigation it must give judgment accordingly."

WILL HAVE TO EXTEND COURT.

Officer Austin arrested one H. Berkemeyer, a baker, on Seventh and East Park streets, at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night, for insulting two respectable ladies, whom he is alleged to have followed from First and Alder streets. When the case was called in the police court yesterday, Austin asked to have the case continued until today as he wished to secure the attendance of important witnesses. The witnesses referred to are supposed to be the two ladies who had Berkemeyer arrested, as they were not present yesterday. The woman declined to prosecute the man after having him arrested, saying that they would rather pay the prisoner's fine than to appear in the police court. They will, however, have to be now heard to-day as subpenas have been issued for them.

MRS. TERWILLIGER'S WILL.

The will of Philanda Terwilliger, wife of James Terwilliger, which was filed for probate yesterday, is an antique looking document. It is a faded piece of paper evidently torn from a ledger, and the writing on it is in brown ink. It bears the date of August 14, 1874, and the names of John Terwilliger, since deceased, and John O. Waterman.

Mrs. Terwilliger bequeathed the house and furniture in which she lived, and 120 acres in the Terwilliger donation land claim, to her daughter Julia V., now Mrs. T. M. Richardson, and a block which she brought across the plains to her son, William O. Green, now dead. The land is now estimated to be worth $50,000.

MINOR COURT NOTES.

The grand jury yesterday indicted Ah Chung, charged with stealing $300 worth of tools from Pat Scollard.

In the state circuit court yesterday the John Barrett Co. sued E. Kroner for $309 35 for goods sold.

County Judge Cliffe yesterday appointed Mrs. Catherine Reed administratrix of the estate of J. D. Reed. The estate is valued at $4,000.

Ell S. Morgan was appointed administrator of the estate of John F. Morgan.

Letters of guardianship were granted yesterday to Sherman Kronenberg over Charles Kronenberg.

The plat of East Lynne on the east side of the river was filed yesterday.

SUIT FOR WORK DONE.

The suit of P. F. Brady and Simon Kissella against J. J. Searle and E. B. Dean, has been transferred from the circuit court of Linn county to the United States circuit court here on petition of defendants. The suit is brought to recover the sum of $4500 alleged to be due plaintiffs for work performed on the Oregon Pacific railroad for the defendants, between October, 1888, and January, 1889. In their answer defendants deny that the contract was completed or that the amount of excavating stated was done, and further that the work done was not according to the engineer's plans.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED.

The second demurrer to the indictment of C. F. Hamilton, for feloniously assaulting Gertie Kepper, which was based on omission of the word felonious, was sustained in the criminal court yesterday, and the whole matter remanded to the grand jury.

A demurrer to the indictment was entered in the case of Ah Quey, charged with assault. It will be argued to-morrow.

EXAMINING THE DOCUMENTS.

The county commissioners and County Judge Cliffe spent a very considerable time examining the mass of documents submitted in connection with the application of the citizens of East Portland for a reduction of the maximum rates of fare on the Stark street ferry and Morrison street bridge. Commissioner Danne said yesterday that the decision would be announced in about a month.

WENT TO JAIL AS USUAL.

James Purdell and John C. Price, charged with selling liquor to Indians on the Umatilla reservation, pleaded guilty in the United States district court yesterday and were fined $15 each. Both fellows ready have any money to pay fines with and went to jail in default of the general rule, until no one connected to fail to serve out their time.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Charlie Hoon, an employe of Spaulding & Tarpenning, wholesale hardware, swore out a complaint in the police court yesterday noon against Edward Kraze, a fellow workman, accusing him of assault and battery.

STOLE A SEWING MACHINE.

A Chinaman named Ah Jong was arrested by Constable Simmons on complaint of a countryman named Chang Chung yesterday, who charges him with the larceny of a sewing machine, valued at $45.

A PROLONGED SESSION.

The session of the police court yesterday afternoon lasted until nearly 3 o'clock. The case taking up most of the court's time was that of the State vs. J. C. Haynes and John Wilson, charged with robbing a Seattleite named Charles Brown in Mansfield's saloon, on First and C streets, last Saturday night of $42. The following minor cases were disposed of, after which the above case was taken up: Charles Pruitt and John Smith, drunks, $5 each; Peter Moran, simple drunk, $2; Fiddler Williams, charged with drunkenness, was discharged more out of pity for the poor wretch than anything else.

Brown, the plaintiff in the case against Haynes and Wilson, proved a very poor witness for the state, he not remembering anything beyond the game of pool he was in the saloon Saturday night. He did not recollect having seen the defendants in the place. He acknowledged having spent his money very freely, stating that he came from Seattle with about $27 in his pocket for the purpose of having Pantages's "engagement."

W. P. Hunt, the accountant, under the alias of "Dick Dead Eye," was the most important witness called by the prosecuting attorney. He testified to going into the card room attached to the Mansfield saloon, where Brown was lying on a card table in a very intoxicated condition, and alleged that he saw Haynes's hand in the drunken man's pocket. Haynes, seeing the witness, excitedly said to him: "Get out; shut the door. Don't say anything about this, and I'll divvy with you." Another witness testified that he saw Haynes take a purse out of Brown's pocket, and he also saw Wilson, outside the booty with the witness, but there being only 10 cents in the purse no further proceedings of a division was made.

The testimony introduced by the defense was simply given by acquaints of the accused at the time of the alleged robbery, who claimed that Brown and Pine were never together during the evening excepting in the presence of seven or eight others. Judge Tanner took the case under advisement until to-day, when a decision will be rendered.

SMALL CIVIL SUITS.

The following small civil suits have been instituted in Justice Tuttle's court:

By C. A. Allaky against a Mrs. Johnson for the possession of a house which the latter forcibly holds.

G. Ginocchio & Co. against Bernard Sargousse for $38 65 with interest from May, 1883, and costs and disbursements in the action.

C. F. Pearson against the Portland & Willamette Valley Railway. The plaintiff in his complaint alleges that he shipped an upright boiler and engine over the defendant's lines to McKee station, and that machinery belonging to the engine and boiler to the value of $53 17 was lost while the freight was in defendant's hands.

Cox, Gardner & Dorr against S. H. Abrahams for $134 55 for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered.

Harvey Spaulding against Charles W. Elder for $19 26 for professional services.

Thomas J. Hunt against John Leavens for $20. This amount Hunt claims is due him on 2246 railroad ties sold the defendant at the rate of 17 cents per tie.

Barney O'Hara against Mrs. A. L. Anderson for the possession of a dwelling house situated at No. 205 E street. Constable Simmons has thus far been unable to get service on Mrs. Anderson not being able to find her.

KNOCKED OUT IN ONE ROUND.

Bad Blood Between Tom Ward and Dave Campbell Leads to a Barroom Fight.

An OREGONIAN reporter encountered Tom Ward, who aspires to pugilistic fame, yesterday in Police Judge Tanner's office looking as if he had been "done up" by running against a sledge hammer. His face was badly swollen, his eyes encircled by dark blue rings, his forehead ornamented with a piece of sticking plaster, and his left eyebrow stitched in three places.

On being asked what he was up for, and who had hammered him so, he said: "I am not under arrest. I just swore out a warrant against Dave Campbell who beat me up in great shape last night."

"What did he do that for?" was asked.

"Just because I had publicly expressed my opinion as to his abilities as a fighter, and also as to the origin of the alleged dispatch from a man purporting to come from a sporting man of Pittsburgh, who offered to back him against Dominick McCaffrey."

"I went into Johnny Barry's saloon on the southeast corner of Second and Morrison streets, for a glass of beer last night, and while in there accused Barry of sending the 'Pittsburg' dispatch from San Francisco while he was there, to make the public think that Campbell was some body. While drinking my beer, Barry accosted a friend to the front door to prevent, I suppose, and Campbell walked in and just as I turned my head to see who it was coming, without a word I received a blow in the face that floored me. I fell, and on regaining my feet, received another blow which threw me flat on the ore. The assault was unprovoked, and I am going to have him arrested."

CAMPBELL'S VERSION OF THE AFFAIR.

The reporters desiring to get both sides of the fracas, which is no credit to either of the men engaged in it, sought out Campbell, who said:

"I was coming down Morrison street shortly after midnight this morning, and when opposite Barry's saloon I heard loud talking. I stopped and was about to enter, when I heard my name mentioned several times, and I tell you it was not in very complimentary terms, either. I stopped at the door, and listened a few moments when I became satisfied that the speaker was Tom Ward, who came up from San Francisco lately with "Sailor" Brown. I heard him say 'Dave is no good; he doesn't know anthing about a fighter; I have no use for him, and he has none for me. The face is too pretty for a fighter.'

"I thought he had gone about far enough, and stepped into the saloon. I walked up to where he was standing, and said: 'You have been making a talk about me behind my back. Now say what you have to say to my face.' He retorted by saying: 'What I have said is true. I then asked him if he knew what I thought of a man that would talk behind my back. If I was making my living by fighting I would expect to be talked about, but I am living and minding to my own business I did not relish his talk.

"Finally I said to him, 'I think you are a dirty cur. There is not a spark of manhood left in your worthless carcass.' As I said this I stepped a little forward. As I did so I saw him reach for his hip pocket, as if to pull a gun. I immediately let go with my left, catching him on the forehead and bringing him to the floor. He came at me again and I stopped him with my right on his left optic. Not being satisfied, he rushed me with his head lowered. I upper cut him, which straightened him out. He then clinched me and bystanders separated us. That is the whole affair as it occurred."

Two witnesses in the encounter corroborated Campbell in his statement.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officer Mott served the warrant, sworn out by Ward on Campbell, and the latter put up $25 for his appearance in the police court this morning.

STRIKING TO LOSE VERY DECIDED.

The Contract for the Engine House of the Portland Cable Railway To Be Awarded.

Bids for the construction of an engine house 152x44 feet, and a building 60x15 feet for a car house, and general offices for the Portland Cable Railway Company, were opened yesterday by the committee appointed for that purpose. The following are the three lowest bids: John Robertson, $48,400; R. G. Combs, $42,900; J. E. Bennett, $42,000.

There were several other bids for portions of the work, but the above were the only ones for the whole.

Mr. Bennett's bid being the lowest, the contract will probably be awarded him. The award is, however, delayed until the amount of rock which will have to be removed in making the excavation for the wheel pit can be ascertained, which will be done, and the contract let to-day.

Mr. Preston C. Smith, president of the company, states that the company have an agent now in San Francisco looking after such material as it will be necessary to procure there. In material which can be procured here, Portland dealers will be given the preference.

Work will be commenced at once, and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible, and the company will try to have cars ready to run by the time the road is ready.

No. 8 Taylor St., Port Townsend, Washington.

The city of Port Townsend is situate on INCOMPARABLY THE FINEST HARBOR in the world. It is the port of entry for Puget Sound, whose ocean shipping in 1888 was 2,924,838 TONS. The Port Townsend Southern Railway, which will give the city INDEPENDENT CONNECTION WITH TWO TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES at Portland, Oregon, is in course of construction. A STEAM MOTOR LINE, to circumscribe the city, will be in operation about the middle of May. The Gloucester Fishing Company have established their headquarters here and within one year will have from 100 TO 200 SCHOONERS engaged in the HALIBUT INDUSTRY. Port Townsend has the only IRON FURNACE on Puget Sound. A CUSTOM HOUSE COSTING $240,000 will be built during the year. Brick and stone BUSINESS BLOCKS, costing in the aggregate $500,000, are under construction. The POPULATION HAS DOUBLED within the past eighteen months and it is reasonable to expect that Port Townsend will have 15,000 PEOPLE when the census of 1890 is taken. Puget Sound for the coming summer will have an immigration of 1000 persons a day.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY. PROPERTY VALUES ARE STILL LOW.

We have choice business, residence and acreage properties. Orders by mail will have as prompt and as careful attention as personal applications. No one has bought property through our agency within the past year but has at least doubled his money—some have trebled, some quadrupled.

No city on the Pacific coast offers so good a field for safe investment and large returns as Port Townsend does to-day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the ratio, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

THE TRIAL OF M'CUNE

It Is the Ruling Sensation of Yamhill County.

SCENES IN THE COURT ROOM

Exhibition of the Arms of the Contestants—The Pivotal Point Seems To Be Was McCune Left or Right Handed When He Fired

McMINNVILLE March 28—The crowd was not diminished at the session more ladies being present than during the day McCune's chief counsel conducting the proceedings with interest consulting an attorney frequently

Mrs Bewley is present dressed in black and is testified to by many her face always showing her deep sorrow even when a momentary smile crosses her face on speaking to a friend

Court was called at 9 30 Dr W Tyler Smith testified that he was called to attend the deceased He described the wound that caused death The bullet entered just below the right cheek bone and ranged slightly upward

Sheriff Harris was the next witness He brought in six revolvers and laid them down on the attorneys table whereupon the attorneys reporters and the court drew back with a shudder The court inquired if those pistols were loaded When informed that they were it took some courage to sit near as he piled them down on the table and all hands felt uneasy so long as the sheriff handled them and was explaining them to the jury

The first pistol shown was McCune's the one that did the deadly work a small 38-caliber Another one that he ran home to get was a long-barreled 44 caliber Deceased's was a Colt's navy Young Bewley's was a long 44 and a short 40-caliber

P M Scroggins testified that he took the belt and scabbard off the deceased He described the scabbard and thought the pistol could fall out as the deceased fell from the buggy

The prosecution here rested and court adjourned until 9 A M

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

The Testimony Turns More In McCune's Favor

McMINNVILLE Or March 28—All of the front seats were taken principally by ladies half an hour before the court was called to order at 9 o'clock The acoustics of the room are not good and speaking is unintelligible in the remote parts Cross-examination of witnesses is slow and tedious and many of the answers unimportant

Hiram Harriet testified that he was working for Bewley the morning of the shooting saw Bewley take a pistol with him when he started to Sheridan a large pistol

Henry Gee met Bewley going to his farm the day of the shooting and saw a pistol in the buggy seat by his right thigh it looked like a Colt's navy

Sheriff Harris brought in that ugly young arsenal of pistols again with their long, shining barrels and bullets bulging from several chambers He had examined deceased's pistol since last evening by direction of the court and found no powder in one chamber investigated but one chamber the pistol was given him by Coleman

G W Campbell saw deceased Roswell and T R Bewley together in decedent's field on the day of the shooting

Warren a merchant of North Yamhill was at Sheridan on the day of the shooting and saw deceased in a cart Roswell and T R Bewley were in Bewley's livery stable at out 3 o'clock When deceased was requested to leave town by the older McCune he said I will leave town but I won't be forced out

Roswell said that there were not enough men in town to put a stop to the fuss

The elder McCune said We will see about it

Apprehending trouble witness left town before the shooting

William Keogh lives at Sheridan, met deceased near Bellevue the day of the shooting Bewley and he were going around Sheridan Some school children were near during the conversation

John Bowers was in the livery stable on the day of the shooting was in the west room and heard a shot when looking in another direction looked around and saw McCune's pistol in line with Bewley's face, and it was immediately discharged and Bewley fell from his cart When McCune and Roswell exchanged two shots apiece nearly simultaneously, then McCune fired one shot into the livery stable as there appeared to be three men firing at him from that place Witness caught Bewley's horse fifteen or twenty shots were fired altogether McCune fired a fifth shot as he ran towards his home

Cross-examination—Was sitting near the end of the bridge and heard the voices but could not distinguish words saw the emphatic gestures before the shooting but saw no pistol in deceased's hands heard Walter Graves commanding officer of the Sheridan cavalry declare the town under martial law and demand all the arms of parties not members of his command

Witness father having died suddenly last evening he was excused from further attendance

D C Coleman postmaster at Sheridan Saw part of the difficulty and heard the wrangle The first two pistol reports were nearly simultaneous The third followed instantly, and which witness believed was the fatal shot, when Bewley fell from the cart. Witness thinks Bewley and McCune fired the first two shots He picked up Bewley's pistol covered, where it fell by him; two caps were gone from the chambers he thought that two chambers of Bewley's pistol had been discharged Walter Graves delivered four more pistols to witness for safe keeping and he delivered the pistols to the sheriff T R Bewley examined the pistol at the time of the handing to the sheriff, who called witness attention to the fact that all the chambers of deceased's pistol contained cartridges

Cross examination—He pedestrianized Bewley to Dr Smith's office thinks the pistol was under deceased's person when he fell in the street

Ida Kingsbury 11 years old lived near Bellevue was going to school and heard Raleigh tell Bewley he couldn't go through Bewley said I'll shoot my way through Witness was cross examined at length but with no material change

The spectators spent but a few minutes away at noon and returned with food in their hands still eating The crowd seems to increase

Let the jury be discussed correspondent by Master testimony

Early Court after the shooting though Mc the second time stepping as Burt Bewley's hand went to his hip and heard two shots before McCune fired

Anson Munson was working for Roswell Bewley on Bewley's place near Sheridan deceased Roswell and T R Bewley met Bewley's place the day of the shooting Roswell advised his father not to go through Sheridan deceased said he would go through if he had to shoot his way through T R Bewley said I'll see you through then started Witness and Roswell put their horses in the barn put them harnessed saddled others and followed at once Witness stopped by the way but Roswell followed on in a gallop

Edward Deacon aged 15 heard the colloquy Bewley added If you touch me I will kill you and made a motion to draw a pistol when McCune drew a pistol and fired first McCune was on guard below town and said he was going home to get supper Witness went up town with him saw a pistol in Roswell's pocket just before the shooting began

Sam Evans testified that deceased told the elder McCune that there were not enough men in town to put him out saw deceased make a motion to draw a pistol as McCune drew his pistol and fired Other testimony was corroborative of Bones and Coleman After McCune went home and got a large pistol he was returning to the scene of the difficulty with a belt containing several cartridges and was arrested and disarmed by the Sheridan militia

The remainder of the afternoon was consumed in the examination of witnesses most of the time being occupied by the prosecution The testimony was chiefly corroborative and cumulative The crowd was frequently pressed back by the bailiffs

Willard McClure will go on the stand and tell his own story at 7 Court adjourned at 6 for one hour

THE SALMON TRADE

Seven Hundred Thousand Cases Sold and Not a Fish Caught

SAN FRANCISCO March 28—The open season for canning salmon in Oregon and California which will legally begin on Monday April 1st causes considerable interest among certain commission merchants here The Sacramento and the San Joaquin are the only rivers in California that have yielded any salmon and of late years the quantity taken has been falling off For the past three years salmon canning in California has been of insignificant proportions The real cause for the declination of supply is unknown It has been attributed to the shoaling of the waters in the Sacramento river through debris which has come down from the hydraulic mining claims on rivers flowing into the Sacramento It is also thought there are some feeders in the water that like young salmon and that thousands are destroyed in that way Wherever the cause fish are not as plentiful in California rivers as formerly

A local paper which is usually reliable in these matters says Never before in the history of the salmon trade have sales of futures at this season of the year been so large as at present It is claimed and the claims is confirmed in several quarters that sales of the catch of 1889 aggregate about 700 000 cases, and not a single fish caught Of course it is reasonably sure that the fish exist and that they will be caught and canned because a larger quantity than that has been canned annually for several years The bottom of the business is not likely to drop out entirely in a single year Some parties may not catch all the fish they have sold but they will doubtless be able to fill contracts by buying of those who will have a surplus We are informed that all the salmon to be canned on the Sacramento river this year have been sold except one brand Most of those expected to be canned in Oregon and British Columbia have also been sold In fact the movement in futures this year began in British Columbia and probably 90 per cent of the pack in that section has been disposed of Very liberal sales of futures of Alaska salmon have also been made Heavy sales of futures this year have excited a great deal of curiosity and some adverse criticism but their authenticity is not necessarily marred by such exhibitions It is but natural that those who did not know what was going on, and who were therefore left out of the deal should decry the whole thing or invent reasons for it that exist only in their imaginations One thing is certain there have been extensive sales of salmon futures It is equally certain that most of these have been on foreign account All of the British Columbia salmon purchased are for England and Australia This is also true of most of the purchases of Oregon and Alaska salmon The object of the purchasers is not so clearly defined

A plausible theory is that the English buyers have bought heavily in order to protect the stock already on the English market and afloat there All of the British Columbia pack of 1888 has been received at English ports together with all of the Oregon salmon of the pack of 1888 designed for that market and considerable consignments of Alaska salmon The Senator arrived on the 26th inst with 51,600 cases There are still some invoices of Alaska salmon en route but the quantity is not large

THE SEQUEL TO A HORSE RACE

The Crime Apparently Unprovoked, and Committed in the Home of the Victim—Other State and Territorial News

PENDLETON March 28—The East Oregonian has the following C L Williams an old timer of Grant county who is in town today brings the news of a terrible tragedy that occurred last Saturday evening at Hamilton The victim was J M Hamilton son of Senator Hamilton He was killed by Clate Hinton the 17 year old son of Walker Hinton The particulars of the killing are as follows

There was a horse race in Hamilton Saturday afternoon and after the racing was over a dance was given at the residence of Senator Hamilton After the dance broke up J M Hamilton approached young Hinton and whispered Come outside I would like to see you a minute At this suddenly and without warning, Hinton arose drew a knife and plunged its glittering blade deep into the breast of Hamilton the point penetrating his left lung Not content with this the boy struck his victim a second time on the left arm splitting it open from shoulder to elbow

Hinton was placed under arrest and the wounded man was taken in charge by Dr Fell. When Mr Williams left Hamilton was yet alive but the doctor had said there was no hope for his recovery

Mr Williams did not learn what motive or provocation there was for the killing so far as he knew there had been no words between them save those mentioned above He was rather reticent on this point but said enough to give rise to the belief that there was a family feud" of some nature at the bottom of the affair

The murdered man was about 40 years old and the eldest son of Senator Hamilton He was well liked by all those with whom he came in contact, and had many friends in the county

The weapon used says Dr Fell was evidently a long two edged dirk with a broad blade It was not discovered on young Hinton's person

A GHASTLY SENSATION

Horrible Discoveries Made in a Negro Graveyard

CAMDEN N J March 28—The special committee of the Camden board of health appointed to investigate the condition of the Butler burial ground for colored people in the rear of Evergreen cemetery developed the fact that the state sanitary and burial laws have been grossly violated and that serious results might follow during the coming hot weather and epidemic death dealing disease might result from surface interment

Thirty five lots were made as to what depth bodies had been interred Coffins were found to be eighteen inches below the surface and in some cases bodies were only one foot deep

It was also said by the committee that when they dug up several graves bones were turned up and the feet of perfect were plainly visible Altogether it is said few bodies are buried as deep as three feet and the stench of decomposing flesh makes the place a nuisance and breeds disease

'Dumpsey' Butler owner of the ground is said to be worth $60 000 and is a magnate among the colored people He said to-night I know nothing about the ghastly rumors of dogs going into the grave yard and eating human bones Dogs might be seen therein but no complaint has been made to my knowledge Bodies have been buried without my knowledge and without permits, but who they were I cannot say

The inspector of the board of health says no permits for burial have been granted for this cemetery for months, yet it is claimed there have been burials at intervals

Probably state prosecution will await the action of the board of freeholders

AN ARISTOCRATIC VENTURE

The Belgian Queen and Her Daughter Publishing a Magazine

Maria Henrietta queen of the Belgians has gone in for editing like Miss Cleveland and other distinguished women before her She and her youngest daughter Clementine have just started a magazine of an unofficial style which is called La Jeune Belle The idea is to keep young girls up in household matters The queen writes about the way to keep house and theater criticisms while her daughter who signs her self Martha d'Orey does art and literature Carmen Sylva, which is the nom de plume of the queen of Roumania has been engaged on the staff to write a poem for every number and it is expected that Stephanie the crown princess of Austria will do the picture

If the Archduchess Maria Valoria comes into the scheme as is probable this paper will be an altogether aristocratic affair Their chance of journalistic success however would have been very much better had they started a society paper and each engaged to write all they knew about her husband and his friends the king of the Belgians and the crown prince of Austria being among the most notorious types of European royalty

Train No 60 was in charge of Conductor Hall and Brakeman Hall Both escaped with slight injuries

The dead bodies were taken to Lathrop and prepared for burial

The wrecked engine and cars were cleared away by 10 o'clock and the track was cleared by noon

FRESNO March 28—Two freight trains collided at Switch 1 about 7 miles north of Fresno this morning resulting in the breaking up of two engines and many cars Three persons were quite severely though not fatally injured The accident was the fault of careless shows on the part of the engineers both of whom evidently undertook to run past the switch and back the trains in on the side track Owing to the fact that a dense fog was prevailing a disastrous collision resulted

Both trains arrived at Muscatel at the same time There was a dense fog and the trains were within two car lengths of each other before the engineers discovered their danger The engineers and firemen had barely time to jump before the trains struck each other with a great crash As it was one of the engineers was unable to get off and was caught in the wreck but not seriously hurt

The wreck was a complete one One of the engines mounted on top of the other stripping it completely Three cars of the north bound train were smashed to splinters and piled on top of the tender The fourth car climbed on top of the huge heap of debris The car next to the locomotive of the south bound train was loaded with household goods and accompanying the car was a young man named William O Viney from Bloomington Ill The car was bound for Goshen This car was completely wrecked and with the furniture was reduced to splinters Viney was severely but not dangerously hurt

Fifteen cars are seen in all sorts of positions most of them standing with one end on the track and the other end on top of the next car

Under the wreck of the north bound train can be seen a bundle of blankets and it is believed that the mangled body of a tramp who was stealing a ride will be found when the wreck is cleared away

The only ones known to be hurt are Viney, who is now in a hospital at this place and the engineer The latter was caught in his cab under a freight car which reared up and fell on the engine but wonderful to relate he was uninjured with the exception of a few slight scratches and bruises

A Rumor That the Control of the Direction Will Be Changed to New York

SAN FRANCISCO March 28—Commenting on railroad matters in general a local paper will say to-morrow What the coming meeting of the Southern Pacific Company will bring forth no man knows save those on the inside, but there is no end of speculation and some of the reports are insisted upon so emphatically that it may be that there is something in them It is known for a fact that several changes will be made in the directory

From railroad authority it was learned yesterday that if it is possible for C P Huntington to secure enough of the members of the directory of the quorum to represent the Eastern interests of the company, he will have the balance of power removed to New York There are eleven directors in the board Huntington with his nephew W H Huntington and J J Bull men who is to be Mrs Hopkins Searles representative with Leland Stanford and J F Yates, now acting vice president at New York would make five members and only a sixth would be needed but it is said that he could be easily procured It is one it is considered more than likely that Mr Gage and Timothy Hopkins will retire from the directory and that A L Lansing the secretary and controller will enter it T S Douty W B Brown and H H Miller will remain and A N Towne who takes a prominent place owing to the death of Charles Crocker is of course a fixture

C P Crocker is represented as being anxious to keep the controlling power in San Francisco while Huntington wants it removed This does not accord with the report that Huntington would probably make his home in California which was probably given out for reasons best known to Mr Huntington Incidents Connected With the Killing of the Onackamas County Desperado.

Appointments Made—A New Pastor Sought For—Bad Company—Y M C A Meeting—Batch of Tramps Gone—Notes

A party of a half a dozen gentlemen from the Sandy neighborhood where the horse thief was killed were collected at the stable of Jim Simons yesterday, and were discussing the affair It seems that the entire Sandy country was excited and alarmed while the thief was known to be at large, and in the vicinity There were several cases where the parties present and with little discretion and much zeal assisted in the killing of Innocent Lynch Some men both from the Sandy river looking at a fine hand and were returning down the river on a raft when Lynch was first seen by them, having come to the mouth of the Sandy river in the night They had been out all night and were tired and hungry and concluded that if he was not the man they would

On their return they were told by Simons that a man answering the description of Lynch had been seen at the house of Mrs Wilson a widow woman on the road to the Walhalla The party went there and found Lynch in bed Lynch sprang out of bed and started to run when Mr Wilson shouted to the men to shoot Lynch was shot in the back of the head and fell dead Lynch was then dragged out of the house and his body was left lying in the road where it fell Mr Wilson then went to the house and found a pocket book containing $40 in money and a gold watch which Lynch had taken from Mrs Wilson s trunk Lynch had also taken a horse and buggy from Mr Wilson s barn and had driven to the house where he was killed

The party then went to the house and found the buggy and horse in the barn Lynch was then placed in the buggy and taken to Boring where he was buried

THE NEW GERMAN THEATER

Formal Ceremonies of Laying the Corner Stone Observed Yesterday

The corner stone of the German theater to be erected on the corner of Washington, on and Ninth streets was laid yesterday afternoon with imposing ceremonies under the ritual of the German Masonic order the presence of a large number of prominent German citizens and others

The stone is 24x24 inches, and bears the following inscription "March 28 1889 Under this stone was deposited a box in which a number of coins, etc, were placed, also a copy of the first number of the DAILY OREGONIAN and one of March 28 After the box had been placed in the architect, Mr Otto Klaus, was directed to mortar the stone in, but the mortar gave itself away It is thought no one will ride the box of these articles, as it is designed that from them future generations shall learn what kind of people and cheese were used in Portland in the nineteenth century Supposing that the cheese remains to site for a thousand years or even five hundred what a fine bouquet it will have and how it will tickle the olfactories of the happy man who stumbles upon it!

After the ceremonies a bounteous supper was served at Sussler s garden, enlivened by speeches and music by a string band, which in most accounts was having a little out of tune, which, however was not noticed by the guests

DAMAGED BY HEAVY TIDES

Effects of Late Storms at Yaquina Bay—A Man Very Seriously Injured.

Captain W Young, United States engineers has returned from a visit to Yaquina where he went to inspect the damages caused by the late heavy storms The damage is not so serious as he had feared and was done by the extraordinary high tide on the morning of March 18 This was the same tide which knocked things endwise at North Beach on account of which was published a day or two since At Newport a number of the boats for the tramway to the north jetty were knocked out of the ways on which the stringers were fastened stood firm

On the south side the basin is wide, the largest lands 1 stone for the jetty was protected by a mound still The huge waves swept over the spit carrying the timbers and stone before them, piling it up so that Yaquina bay will land there at high water As there is probability that the sand will wash from the south side of the jetty

[illegible] the jetty [illegible] on the north side, was badly washed away and the work will be delayed a month by the storm The tide rose so high that the mosquito fleet could not land at the wharves for several days

Mr Young informed the writer that the damage done to the jetty will not exceed $20 000 and that the work will be completed in time for the spring season

STILL A RAVING MANIAC

Dr Panton Declares Jesse Farrar Insane Taken to the Asylum

Jesse Farrar the unfortunate young man who was taken from the residence of Mrs Dr M Wheeler No 311 Third street Wednesday evening, a raving maniac, kept on calmly in his heavenly father to wash his sins away all night and Lyceum forenoon

At two o'clock yesterday afternoon Judge John Gallin and Dr A C Panton visited the jail and examined Farrar Dr Panton found that the young man was insane and in need of immediate treatment to cleanse the souls of the police officers present but his progress, if he made any, was very slow and not perceptible

The man was found to be crazy on spiritualism and was sent to the insane asylum at Salem where he will have a chance to operate on Dr Harey Lane

Dr Panton told a reporter that he did not think Farrar's insanity was due to spiritualism, but that the disease was not hereditary that the man would possibly be temporarily sane in a few weeks

A gentleman present at the examination, who has acquainted with the unfortunate man and who was recognized by him during his ravings informed the reporter that he thought Farrar's insanity was brought on by taking too copious doses of spiritualism He also thought that probably the raving was handed on by Farrar's father, in the semi insane form of belief being able to grasp the belief more firmly

THE HUM IN THE TELEPHONE

The Electric Light Wires Cause an Induced Current, Hence the Incessant Noise.

What causes the incessant hum one hears in the telephone at night asked a reporter yesterday of Manager J H Thatcher of the Portland Telephone Company

The electric light wires was the reply "When they are charged with a current they cause an induced current in the telephonic wires which makes the hum you hear The closer the wires are the greater the noise is Electric light wires affect telephone wires 300 feet away and if two systems run parallel for any great distance the influence can be felt at a distance of 500 feet

If you should put the wires under ground, would that remedy matters"

Not at all The earth is a good conductor of electricity

MORE SCHOOL FACILITIES NEEDED

President Thompson Says That Three New Buildings Will Be Required in a Year

"We are going to have plans drawn for a two-room and a four-room addition to the Failing school said President D P Thompson, of the school board to an OREGONIAN reporter yesterday "With two rooms we will be able to accommodate eighty more pupils, and 160 with four rooms. The addition will be attached to the south side of the school building and will cost between $6000 and $8000 It is absolutely necessary for us to increase the capacity of Failing school, as the population of that district is rapidly increasing This year we will also finish the new North school at an expense of about $10 00

"At the present rate of increase in Portland's population I don t see but what we will need more school room in a very short time

"Most assuredly Within one year we will be compelled to build three new schools one in North Portland another in South Portland and the third on Portland Heights

"A WILD FLOWER"

Lee Ben and Baldwin Cotton Company's were last night greeted by a good house at the New Park theater The play A Wild Flower is a romantic Southern drama in which are exhibited the different phases of character to be met with in the South The play is one in which Idaline in the character of Sincerity Weeks a wild flower exhibits her peculiar dramatic talents to the best possible advantage The acting in this play is more adapted to her style and natural capabilities than in others in which she has appeared on the boards Ben Cotton, as Zip, the colored servant, acquitted himself in his usual style The part is not a heavy one, but the quaint negro dialect of Zip was good and elicited repeated applause Charles Chapelle as Harold Wilmot and Miss Nellie Cotton as Nondas Bonora, were prominent characters in the play and both carry their parts well The former was laboring under difficulties, owing to a severe cold which greatly interfered with his articulation

The play is one full of stirring incidents and exciting events and interest is attached to each character represented

To night the company appears in "Erma the Waif, and to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon a matinee 'Nobody's Claim' will be given The management have kindly invited the children of the Children's Home to attend the matinee, and, if it is a pleasant day, the little ones will no doubt be out in full force.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, MARCH 29.

NEW WAR SHIPS.

We have no need of a large standing army, since we are beyond the danger of invasion by any foreign power, and could raise an army quickly enough to meet any force that could be landed on our shores. But we ought to have a navy strong enough to maintain our standing among the powers of the world. We are abler than any other country to construct and maintain a navy; no other power in the world has the financial resources we possess, and we have all the means within our selves to construct, to man and to maintain the best and strongest navy on the globe.

England, it is said, intends to expend $100,000,000 during the next four years in the construction of new war ships. This is a large sum, but it is merely a bagatelle in comparison with the sum our country might employ for the like purpose, and never feel the burden of it. It is not probable, however, that we shall go so fast. During twenty-five years the war ship has been undergoing transformations, and it is not probable that we have yet arrived at the war ship of the future. One thing, however, is certain, namely, there will be less dependence on armor than heretofore. The race between guns and defensive armor has been won by the guns; that is, no armor can be made which guns will not penetrate, and therefore war ships will now be made less heavy and of greater speed.

It is interesting to find the fact recalled that Farragut more than twenty years ago predicted this change. At that time all nations in building war vessels were trying to surpass each other in providing greatest weight of defensive armor. At a dinner given in Brooklyn a few days ago to the new secretary of the navy, Mr. Seth Low, ex-mayor of that city, related the following:

When I was in England in 1865 I chanced to sit next to a gentleman who had been a midshipman in the British navy at the time when Farragut was in Europe in the flagship Franklin. One day, he told me, he commanded the boat which took the sturdy old admiral back to his own flagship from the ship of the English admiral. As they broke away from the side of the heavily armed vessel, Admiral Farragut said to him: "Young gentleman, if you live you'll see the armor come off the sides of ships just as it has come off the sides of men."

Farragut foresaw that the increase of size and power of guns would gain the day in the contest with defensive armor. A reviewer says: "He was a man gifted with rare intuitions as regards everything that concerned the construction and fighting of war ships, and his belief in the inevitable results that have followed the increasing weight of their armor and the simultaneous increase of the size and power of naval guns has been more and more justified by the costly experiments that have been made on the other side."

The same writer says: "We have lost nothing and gained much by not entering into the costly rivalry that has demonstrated its own folly. Our new steel cruisers are regarded with almost as much concern in England as the Monitor was. They are models of construction, carrying very formidable guns, and are remarkable for their speed and for the ease and rapidity with which they can be handled. Under vigorous and judicial administration of the navy department multiplication of those cruisers will be as rapid as energy and liberal outlay can make it, and a fleet of these large, handsome and efficient war ships will be put afloat within the next four years that will be the glory of the republic and that will enable us to be represented in all seas by ships-of-war that will inspire both admiration and respect."

A CHARGE OF DISCRIMINATION.

After a delay of fifteen days in quarantine the Columbian has been permitted to dock, and land her passengers in San Francisco. The delay was, as a matter of course, most vexatious to passengers, and caused heavy financial loss to the O. R. & N. Co. Statements, hot with indignation, have been published, showing that the detention was altogether useless, and some have gone so far as to charge that it was due more to a desire to discriminate in favor of railway travel than to protect the city of San Francisco from possible contagion. How much or how little there is in this charge, which has the indorsement of ex-Governor Perkins, THE OREGONIAN does not pretend to say. Statements in the case have all come from one side, and have been voiced chiefly by the detained passengers, who naturally are disposed to consider the detention an outrageous one. They dwell with much emphasis upon the fact that the case of smallpox, if smallpox it was, was "such a very little one," and cite with extreme bitterness the fact that the patient would, had she reached Oakland by the overland train, have been permitted to go unquestioned to a hotel, from whence, if necessary, she would have been sent to the pest house, and no note taken of the movements of her fellow-passengers.

No one will challenge this statement. Whether it was due to a deliberate purpose to discriminate against ocean transportation service in this case, or to the custom that has long sat at the harbor gates of cities to ward off contagion that is so liable to lurk in the crowded steerage of emigrant ships, the fact remains the same. Railway passengers come and go unchallenged, and travelers by steamer are subject to the closest scrutiny and, upon occasion as in this case, to vexatious and costly delay. It is no wonder that they, as time hangs heavy upon their hands, institute comparisons between the way that they and those who seek to come into a city by rail are treated, and conclude that it is not so much the interests of the city as of rival transportation companies, that are consulted in the name and through the authority of the board of health.

Mr. Kasson of the Berlin Samoan conference was minister to Germany under President Arthur, and under date of March 23, 1885, sent a dispatch to Secretary Bayard, in which he describes the action of the German war vessel Albatross at Apia as an aggression, under circumstances indicating a "complot" with the German plantation owners, and, at all events, an "unwarranted assault on the independence of the islands." Mr. George H. Bates is the democratic member of the conference; he is an able lawyer and a friend of ex-Secretary Bayard, and as the special agent of the state department in Samoa he submitted his views in a report dated December 10, 1888. It is worthy of note that England's position in regard to the Samoan question is identical with our own. The English blue book shows that England has been throughout in cordial accord with America, and that she declined to accede to Germany's request for assistance and cooperation in the restoring of order in Samoa until she had learned the American government's views on the subject.

The Willamette Falls Company submitted a proposition for lighting the city by electricity; Mr. George B. Markle subsequently submitted another. But the common council, not having asked for competitive bids, is not bound to accept either proposition. What it should do now is to open the business to competition, invite bids and let the contract for public lighting to the lowest reponsible bidder. In this way the city will get the full benefits which it is entitled to reap from the rivalry of those who seek the advantage of a permanent footing in the city, through the use of the streets for poles and wires. There is more than electric lighting in this affair. It involves the possession of permanent franchises for use of the streets, not only for delivery of currents for lighting, but also for the distribution of power for propelling machinery and street cars. In other words, there is a great stake in it for the contestants, and the city should get all the benefits it can out of the rivalry and competition of those who are playing for the stake. Hence the propriety of letting the public lighting to the lowest responsible bidder. Let those who are playing for the larger stake be pitted against each other in this particular, and let the city get all it can thereby.

MINISTERS TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The principal newspapers of the East, without distinction of party, are warm in their praises of the appointment of Robert Lincoln to the English mission. The appointment has called out many high encomiums, not only upon Mr. Lincoln himself, but upon the administration for its judgment in selecting him. Robert Lincoln is entirely free from suspicion of any Anglomaniac attributes, such as characterize E. J. Phelps, and it is a very proper thing to supersede Phelps by appointment of the son of the great man whom Phelps denounced as "the boor from Illinois, who has torn the last leaf out of the constitution." Robert Lincoln is a man of sense and simplicity of manners, like his immortal father; he is a sober, serious, industrious, upright and able lawyer, and he comes as near being the best type of the intelligent, capable and efficient American gentleman as any man that President Harrison could have selected. He will not toady to the Prince of Wales; he will not flatter the English poodle dogs that vote solidly with Salisbury when a division is called for in parliament. He is an American, who will recommend himself to the respect of decent Englishmen by behaving like a man under all circumstances, instead of trying to ape and imitate the aristocracy in thought and feeling as Phelps did. Murat Halstead's nomination to Germany is excellent; he is an able, independent, energetic, man, familiar by yearly travel with European ways and manners.

The nomination of Allen T. Rice to be minister to Russia is an excellent appointment, and altogether President Harrison has done remarkably well in his selection of eminent Americans to carry our flag into European courts. He has sent no party fools or knaves, and has made but one injudicious appointment, that of Frau Grant to Austria.

The British sealers seized three years ago in Behring's sea for violation of treaty obligations between Great Britain and the United States were sold at public auction Tuesday by the United States marshal of Washington territory, at Port Townsend. There did not seem to be any point in conducting further negotiations looking to the reimbursement of the owners. The Cleveland administration went out leaving this contingency unprovided for, and the Harrison administration is not preparing to pay claims of that kind at present. The auction, though long delayed, was timely, as reports from Victoria are to the effect that the proclamation of the president relative to seal fishing will be disregarded. In that case there will be other matters to look after in the waters of the fur Northwest, preliminary to which it is wise to get the schooners that have lain so long in port out of the way.

Sir Thomas Gladstone, the only remaining brother of the great Gladstone, is dead. He was educated at Oxford. In 1830 he was returned to the house of commons for the borough of Queensborough, in Kent. He subsequently represented the Irish borough of Portarlington and also the English boroughs of Leicester and Ipswich. In 1842 he retired from public life, and in 1851 succeeded to the baronetcy. He was always a strong tory. There was the same division of political opinion between him and his illustrious brother as between Sydney Smith and his fox-hunting tory brother, who exclaimed after hearing O'Connell: "I'd hang him to-morrow morning, and then I'd erect a monument to him under the gallows!"

Statistics furnished by the department of agriculture show that Oregon's quota of wheat for 1888 was 14,548,000 bushels. Of this amount 5,091,800 bushels were required for home consumption, leaving 9,456,200 bushels for exportation. Although there is a disposition on the part of the farmers of the state to diversify their products, making wheat, although the staple, but one of many which furnish a stock for home supply and a moderate surplus for export, they are still closely wedded to wheat raising. The acreage throughout the Willamette valley will certainly not be below that of last year, and there is yet no reason to suppose that the yield will be less.

The New York Herald carefully primed a reporter recently and sent him to propound the following question to the sixty-one democrats of the state assembly: "Whom do you regard as the leader of your party in the Nation?" Thirty-four of the sixty-one answered David B. Hill, seven had no choice, there were two for Cleveland and the rest were scattering. This report will not be soothing to the ex-presidential ear of Cleveland. But it will doubtless tend to increase his delight at his sagacity in signing the omnibus bill, thus adding certainty to the political discomfiture of his friend, the governor, in 1892.

The heads of four Oregon postmasters rolled into the basket yesterday, and as a result the people of Forest Grove, Gervais, Jefferson and Monmouth will have their mail handed out once more by republicans. The workings of the postal service throughout Oregon have been as bad as possible for the past three or four years, and changes indicating that the attention of competent authorities is being called to this service with a view to its immediate improvement will be welcomed by the public at large, irrespective of party.

A statue of Professor Sullman, of Yale College, was erected in New Haven four years ago at a cost of $10,000. A few nights ago some of the students went on a college lark and tore it from the pedestal, cracking the neck of the statue and injuring the pedestal. Such exuberance of spirit is amusing—riotously so. And yet, such old fogies are these college professors that they cannot for the life of them see where the laugh comes in.

People in benighted portions of North Carolina are extremely visionary. A man living near Winton, in that state, recently broke the neck of one of his children and roasted another, and his neighbors are discussing the matter and are of the opinion that he is insane.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

A DOZEN NEW PHYSICIANS.—At the meeting of the faculty of the medical department of the Willamette University at the office of Dr. E. P. Fraser, the dean, last evening the following persons, having passed the examination, were elected to the degree of doctor of medicine and will receive their diplomas Monday evening, when the commencement exercises will be held at Taylor-street M. E. church: L. Victoria Hampton, Ossian J. West, John F. Wetzel, E. Ordway Bostwick, C. Carrie Kellam, Jacob S. Barklow, Harry Greene Hill, Emma M. Linden, Myra A. Brown, W. H. H. Palmer, B. McBride Caples, W. H. Parrish. In the college of pharmacy George Brock was elected to the degree of Ph. G.

THAT ALASKA EXPEDITION.—The offices of the United States engineers in this city have been visited quite frequently of late by men who want to go to Alaska with an expedition to survey the boundary line for which congress appropriated $25,000. Captain Cleveland Rockwell, of the coast and geodetic survey, has received his share of the callers, and many letters bearing on the subject have come to THE OREGONIAN. Captain Rockwell said yesterday that no one in Portland has anything particular to do with the expedition, and all communications referring to it should be addressed to Professor George Davidson, who has charge of the coast and geodetic survey at San Francisco.

THE JOHNSON CREEK SEWER.—Bids will be advertised this week for the construction of sewers in I and K streets. The Johnson creek sewer will not be bid for till next week. There is some opposition to the sewer as projected, some alleging that the district can be better drained by running sewers down the lettered streets. This, however, is, it seems, impracticable, and the sewers now laid were connected with sewers extending to the upper end of the streets if it would not be large enough to carry off the sewage from the territory they run through, and to lay a new pipe the whole length of the street would cost more than to build the sewer in Johnson creek.

AN IDEAL EMERGENCY CLAUSE.—In view of the experience of the last legislature with regard to emergency clauses, the following formula for such clauses is respectfully presented to the legislature that will meet in Salem in 1891: "Inasmuch as the interests of the state require such a law, or as the present law is inadequate, this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its approval by the governor; or, if the governor vetoes it, from and after its passage over his dissent; or, if the governor files it in the office of the secretary of state, to become a law without his signature, from and after the date of such filing."

IMPUDENT, INSULTING BOYS.—A correspondent writes to THE OREGONIAN making a strong protest against the conduct of a gang of boys that congregate in the vicinity of Third and D streets. The correspondent says: "Some of them are the most insulting scamps I have ever seen. They ought to be arrested. Some of them are in need of a good horsewhipping." The correspondent states that she can give the names of these boys. The attention of the police is called to the matter. A few arrests would have a salutary effect and teach the boys to be less impudent.

UNEXPECTED.—The immense map of Multnomah county in course of publication by Mr. Eugene D. White, has proven to be a work of such magnitude on the scale, general style and finish, that he contemplated in the beginning and which he proposes to carry out to the most important particular, that it will require much more time than he anticipated. No time, expense nor pains will be spared, however, to produce the work at the earliest possible moment. Four competent men are constantly employed on the work of compilation and draughting.

PATSY CARDIFF COMING.—Patsy Cardiff, the Minneapolis pugilist, will arrive here this afternoon, accompanied by his trainer, John Donnellson, who is said to be one of the most scientific boxers in America. Cardiff is matched for a glove fight to a finish at San Francisco with Peter Jackson, the colored Australian champion who recently downed Joe McAuliffe. Cardiff has fought Sullivan and Mitchell. Cardiff and his trainer will give a boxing exhibition at the Standard theater to-night.

HOLMES BUSINESS COLLEGE.—The following students have taken positions: Ira Allen, stenographer, Williams & Grout; L. M. Shellabarger, bookkeeper, J. F. Howe; Ira Albright, stenographer, Arthur & Warner; Bertha Morres, stenographer, Eggert, Young & Co., Seattle; Ouida Baily, stenographer, E. H. Johnson, Seattle; Clara Bovard, teacher shorthand, Fort Townsend Normal school.

ELECTRIC LIGHT WORKS.—President Eastham, of the Willamette Falls Electric Company, states that the pole line on the west side of the river, between Portland and Oregon City, with the exception of the setting of four miles of poles, is finished. The building is completed, but none of the machinery has been set up except the water wheels. In about three weeks the works at Oregon City will be in operation.

REPAIRING SIDEWALKS.—When the new city charter goes into effect, May 25, the city will have power to compel property owners to repair sidewalks out of condition. According to the present charter, the city has no such power, and since the decision to that effect was rendered, about a year ago, but little has been done to the sidewalks and many are sadly out of repair.

THE WILLAMETTES' NEW UNIFORMS.—The new flannel uniforms of the Willamette baseball team which have just arrived are probably the nattiest ever brought to Portland. White and black are the prevailing colors. The shirt, trousers and cap are of white, and the stocking, belt, trimmings and the word "Willamette" across the breast, of black.

DR. HOUGHTON'S LECTURE TO-NIGHT.—The third lecture of the course for this season will be given by Dr. Ross C. Houghton in Grace church this evening at 7:30. The lecture will be preceded by a short but choice musical programme. No admission will be charged. Subject of lecture, "A Visit to the Great Pyramid at Cairo, Egypt."

EXHIBITION DRILL TO-NIGHT.—There will be an exhibition drill this (Friday) evening at the Armory. The proceeds will be donated to the three hospitals of the city. Admission to the Armory, 50 cents. As the object is a most deserving one, a large crowd may be expected. After 10 o'clock the band will play for dancing.

ANNUAL MEETING.—There will be an annual meeting of the Seamen's Friend Society this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock in the parlors of Ladd & Tilton. As business of special importance will come up at the meeting, a full attendance is specially desired.

WARNING TO DENTISTS.—We warn all dentists that Dr. C. C. Newcastle is the only dentist in Portland who is licensed to make our patents for making teeth without plates. Persons wearing such teeth will also be liable to prosecution. The International Tooth Crown Co., New York.

TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION.—Inspector of Hulls James L. Ferguson has tendered his resignation, to take effect on appointment of his successor. There are several candidates for the position and the knowing ones say that Mr. W. L. Higgins will be the successful one.

JUDGE WILLIAMS'S LECTURE.—Rev. T. E. Clapp is making arrangements to have Hon. George H. Williams repeat at the Tabernacle at an early date his lecture on the "Divinity of Christ," delivered at Trinity Episcopal church last Sunday evening.

BIG HOTEL ROOF.—Messrs. Hoblitt & McKenzie have a considerable portion of the timbers of the roof of the big hotel framed, and some of them are ready to be raised. They say that in another week or so the roof will begin to loom up in fine style.

SOME PRETTY GIRLS.—It is said that Sol Smith Russell's company numbers among its members some of the prettiest girls on the stage. Everybody and his poor relation will no doubt go to see Russell next week.

MR. FRANK E. MULLER, the well-known commercial traveler of San Francisco, who met with an accident last week, is slowly recovering at the Good Samaritan hospital, where he is being well cared for.

SUFFERING FROM PARALYSIS.—Frank Mauciel, formerly of Portland, is suffering from paralysis of the right side at his home in Bandon, Coos county. His condition is regarded as serious.

IT LOOKED LIKE A RIOT, but it was only a crowd eager to see the new grand figure of George Washington displayed in Arthur Kohn's window, corner Second and Morrison streets.

THURSDAY, March 28.

Merchandise received or soon to arrive by rail: 1 car bay rakes, 1 car machinery, 1 car plows, 79 pkgs agricultural implements, 110 pkgs hardware, 37 pkgs dry goods, 14 pkgs paint, 23 pkgs drugs, 65 pkgs tobacco, 15 cs clothing, 10 kgs nails.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past twenty-four hours: 212 ctls wheat, 368 bbls flour, 434 ctls oats, 595 sks potatoes, 5 pkgs butter, 90 bxs eggs, 15 pkgs green fruit, 170 hd sheep.

FREIGHTS—Dull and weak. The situation is in favor of shippers and against owners, and is steadily tending toward lower rates. The demand for tonnage is light. The report that the Otterspool had been chartered prior to arrival at 52s 6d, and had lost her charter, through failure to arrive is erroneous. She was not a 52s 6d ship and arrived on time. She is a large vessel and would be glad to get 35s, which is the rate obtainable for handier vessels. The Otterspool is at Astoria and is the only disengaged vessel in port.

The following is a statement of the registered tonnage of the port:

In port—Disengaged	1,738
Engaged loading	4,744
Loading lumber at Astoria	1,858
Ready for sea, at Astoria	6,788
Total tonnage in port	15,128
On the way—Due to arrive	11,261

WHEAT—The market is very weak and unsteady and is declining. We quote for Eastern Oregon, $1 25; for valley, $1 22½@1 25.

EGGS—The market is quiet and displays a little more strength than yesterday. We still quote 14 @15c.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The stock market was in the aggregate more active to-day, but this was entirely due to the heavy trading in Reading, the rest of the list being dull and featureless, outside of the few leaders which have of late monopolized business and the interest of speculations. The market closed heavy to weak, and fairly active, generally at but slight changes for the day. Government bonds have been dull and firm.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Produce receipts past 24 hours included 1800 ctls wheat, 3000 qr sks flour, 1100 sks potatoes, 3700 ctls barley.

Freights and Charters—The market for the past week has been dull and inactive and rates have had a downward tendency. In grain tonnage, spot charters were: Br sh Lismore, iron, 1598 tons, for U. K., Havre or Antwerp, at 32s 6d; Ital bk Innocenti, wood, 902 tons, for U. K. or Continent; and Br sh Arkwright, iron, 1655 tons, at 30s 6d. Prior arrival charters—Br bk Nile, 990 tons, Kelso, to load at Tacoma for U. K.; Br bk Earl Dunraven, iron, 1310 tons, Columbia river to U. K., Havre or Antwerp, at 37s. Lumber vessels have continued in good demand the past week. Charters were: Swedish bk Hilmo, Puget sound to U. K.; bks C. O. Whitmore and Amelia, Puget sound to Honolulu; Br bk Daphne, 717 tons, Puget sound to Australia; Br bk Sunbeam, Barrard Inlet to Shanghai; Br sh Habitant, Puget sound to Buenos Ayres. The demand for vessels to load coal has been slack for the past few days, the only charter within the week being the ship Richard, the third to load at Departure bay for San Diego.

Wheat—The week under review has been a spiritless one, the movement being of a slow and dragging character. There has been a very active demand, but offerings were sufficiently large to enable exporters to fill immediate wants. Owing to the weakness of freights, buyers were able to bid up fractionally, and $1 40 to $1 43¼ was paid at the close. The weak tone of foreign markets has had a depressing effect upon local trade, and prices have been fairly active, and prices are higher 2¼ cents compared with last week. To-day's sales were 100 tons, buyer year, at $1 44¾; 300 tons at $1 44½, 1100 tons at $1 44¾; buyer season, $1 42¾.

Afternoon session—Buyer year opened $1 44¾, closed, $1 44; buyer season, $1 42¾.

Barley—Trading for the past week has been of light proportion. In the early part of the week receipts were small and prices by no means heavy, so that values were able to rule fairly steady, but latterly consignments have been coming in freely and given an easier tone to the market. Choice feed is to-day offering at 77½c, a decline of 2½c during the week. Options have been quiet, exciting little interest, and prices have shaped downward. Buyer year closed at 87¾c.

Afternoon session—Buyer year closed, 86¾c; buyer season closed, 82c.

Oats—The market is very dull and weak, owing to a light demand and increased selling pressure. Receipts for the week have been heavy and stocks steadily increasing. Prices have been tending down, and feeding quotations have declined. $1 07½@1 10; No. 1 feed, $1 05; common, $1@1 02½.

Potatoes—The market has moved steadily downward under liberal receipts of old and fresh supplies of new, and closed very weak. Peerless 30@ 35c, Burbanks 40@50c, Garnet Chiles 30@40c.

Millstuffs—Have ruled quite steady during the week and business has been fair at annexed quotations. Bran, all kinds, $13@13; middlings $20@ 25 50.

Hops—The inquiry from the East has been light, and no appreciable change in prices can be noted. Quote 10@16c as extremes.

Onions—Offerings liberal; choice 1@1½c.

Wool—Spring wool coming forward slowly, and quotations not yet established.

Bags—Wheat bags are very firm and holders talk higher prices. Quote Calcuttas 8c spot, 8¼@ 8½c June, July delivery.

Butter—Supplies have been liberal and as a rule prices have favored the buyer, although some holders have advanced ideas and claim prices should go higher. Quote choice to fancy 16@17½c, fair to good 12@15c.

Eggs—Weak. California ranch 17½@18c; Eastern 16@17c.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Wheat receipts past 24 hours at the seven principal receiving points were 16,000 bushels; shipments from these points for the same time were 201,000 bushels.

Wheat was quiet at opening and generally lower, $1 01 May, 97½c June, 88¾c July. Noon—Former. $1 01¼ May, 90¼c June, 88¾c July. Closed—Irregular, 99¾c March, $1 00⅝ April, $1 01¾ May, 90¾c June, 89¾c July.

Provisions—Pork, $12 65 April. Lard, $7 10 April. Ribs, $6 35 April.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 11,000; active, but lower; choice to extra beeves, $4@4 25; steers, $3@3 80; stockers and feeders, $2 20@3 40; Texas cattle, $1 80@3 50.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; strong; 10 higher; mixed, $4 75@4 95; heavy, $4 75@4 97½; light, $4 70@4 90.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Grain freights to Liverpool by steam steady at 3d per bushel.

BEER AND MORPHINE.

A Man Deserted by His Alleged Wife and Discovered in a Dying Condition.

ST. LOUIS, March 27.—Last night a well dressed man about 50 years of age, accompanied by a good looking woman, registered at the hotel as S. M. Wait and wife, of Florida. The couple had supper in their rooms, and during the night Wait drank a good deal of beer. This morning the woman left the hotel and did not return. Later Wait was found in a dying condition, with a bottle of morphine near him. He died in a short time, and the police are searching for the mysterious woman.

KEELY'S MOTOR.

He Calls It the "Vibrating Resonator and Ethereal Generative Evaporator."

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Keely's counsel announced to-day that the former had now in his possession the missing link which was needed to make the "vibratory resonator and ethereal generative evaporator" a success.

It is a copper tube 15 in the form of a hoop, with the ends welded together so perfectly that no joint can be seen. A private exhibition of the motor is promised as soon as the tube is adjusted, and will probably take place in a week or two.

VILLARD'S ELECTRIC LIGHT POOL.

A Sketch of the Idea and the Reasons of Its Failure.

NEW YORK, March 21.—A few weeks ago a company with an authorized capital of $12,000,000 was incorporated by the state of New Jersey. The purpose of this corporation was to consolidated the four separate organizations which have hitherto divided the business of manufacturing and selling the Edison electric light appliances. Henry Villard undertook to accomplish this reorganization and to obtain from his German friends several millions of new capital. Drexel, Morgan & Co. and Winslow, Lanier & Co. have for a long time been the principal bankers of the Edison companies, and Mr. Villard's plan was to form a syndicate by adding to the number of these prominent American bankers the Deutsche Bank and Siemens & Hoiske, of Berlin, and Stern of Frankfort. This arrangement at one time seemed on the point of completion, but for some reason or other it is reported that Mr. Villard has been unable to bring it about in the manner desired. An appeal is now being made by him to American capitalists to come to the rescue.

Various reasons are given for the failure of the scheme, but probably the true explanation is that the recent decision in Canada annulling the Edison incandescent lamp patents there has led the advisers of the German members of the proposed syndicate to the conclusion that the Edison patents are not worth the money that is being asked for them. The history of the cancellation of the patent rights of the Edison company in the incandescent lamp is, shortly, this: Early in 1885 the Edison Electric Light Company caused a suit to be instituted against the Royal Company of Canada for infringement of the patent usually known as Edison's carbon filament patent, stated by them to be the fundamental one involved in incandescent electric lighting. The Royal Company immediately responded by filing a petition with the minister of agriculture at Ottawa praying for the annulment of the patent granted to the Edison Electric Light Company on the ground that the latter failed to manufacture the patent in Canada within four years of the date of the letters patent, November 17, 1879; that the several manufactured parts of the lamp had been imported into Canada and merely assembled there, and that it had refused to sell the invention to the Canadian consumers at a reasonable price. The case was argued at Ottawa in November last. The deputy commissioner of patents, A. Pope, held that the conditions of the Canadian patent law had not been complied with, and declared the Edison patent in Canada null and void. Now, according to section 38 of the revised statutes of the United States, it is set forth that every patent granted for an invention which has been previously patented in a foreign country, shall be so limited as to expire at the same time with the foreign patent. According to the terms of this law, the Canadian patent no longer existing, the American patent has likewise expired.

The question of the validity of the Sawyer-Mann patents implies that of the Edison patents is involved in a case now pending in the Pittsburg court. If the verdict is in favor of the former, the Westinghouse syndicate will then possess the sole right to manufacture and sell in the United States, the incandescent lamp, using carbon for the employment of the filament of carbon. The case is set for Saturday, March 23. The Westinghouse syndicate has, within the past few days, acquired the control of the United States Illuminating Company, which has for several years been one of most prominent purveyors of the electric light in this city. George Westinghouse, jr., and C. H. Jackson have for some time managed the Safety Electric Company, and they now intend to consolidate these corporations.

An Alabama Case.

Chicago Tribune.

The Fourth congressional district of Alabama had last fall about 42,320 voters, of whom 33,560 were black and 8750 white. It is not exceeding the bounds of truth to say there were more white republicans than there were black democrats. Therefore, under ordinary circumstances the district should have given about 24,000 republican majority. But owing to the peculiar condition of things in the Gulf states it gave Burpitt, the democratic candidate for congress, 16,778 votes, while McDuffie, the republican, received but 8,25. He was beaten by 13,000 where he should have won by 24,000. A few years ago Mr. McDuffie would not have sought to challenge this result, though he could have proved it was brought about by bulldozing, ballot-box stuffing, and false counting of votes. Now, to clear his case, he never could have proved it to the satisfaction of a democratic house. Now, however, things have changed for the better. The next house can be relied on to do justice, and so Mr. McDuffie has notified his successful opponent of his intention to contest his seat, and has begun taking evidence to prove the frauds practiced against him.

The contest last occasion the other day to visit Wilcox, one of the counties in the district, to examine some witnesses. No sooner was it known why he had come than three democrats purporting to represent the democratic county committee, and who are said by the newspaper dispatch to be "rather hotheaded," called on him and notified him to leave in forty-eight hours. Mr. McDuffie had read of the fate of Clayton, of Arkansas, and decided to go. Having left McDuffie was of more value than a dead contestant. Other democrats, however, not so "hotheaded," or more fearful of the effect of such performances on popular feeling at the North, urged McDuffie not to go. He will stay and take his testimony. They said they disapproved of the conduct of these men and "public sentiment" would sustain him. Thereupon, as public sentiment is a thing of nothing in its way, but does not bring back to life men who have been assassinated, McDuffie asked these law-abiding democrats if they would promise to protect him and see he came to no harm if he staid. That, of course, they declined to do. They were ready, if he was killed, to adopt resolutions deploring the melancholy affair and condemning the inconsiderate men who had thus injured the reputation of the community. Further than that they could not be expected to go.

Consequently McDuffie, more attached to life than to obituary resolutions, cleared out. He will take his case, not to the Alabama counties where he is threatened with death, but to the halls of congress, and there is every reason to believe there he will get justice. The fourth Alabama is one of the strongest republican districts in the country. Yet for more than ten years it has been stolen from that party and misrepresented by a Democrat. The fifty-first congress may see a change.

An Anecdote of the War.

Detroit Free Press.

A soldier who had been taken prisoner had a wife and children living in New Jersey. A good minister learning that there was soon to be a general exchange of prisoners, and wishing to relieve the terrible anxiety of the wife, called and told her that her husband would probably be exchanged in a short time. "Well," said the poor broken-hearted widow, "I love John, and the children love him, and if he isn't so handsome as some men, I don't want to exchange him, I don't, and I just won't have a rebel for a husband, so now!"

BUSY DAY IN LEGAL CIRCLES

An Important Decision Rendered Yesterday in the United States Court.

An Old Will Filed—The Ta.. Question—Demurrer Sustained—What They Pay—Went to Jail—Notes.

Judge Deady rendered a decision yesterday in the United States district court in the case of the Albina Ferry Company against the ship Imperial and the steamer E. D. Reed. The latter craft were libeled by the ferry company, to recover damages for injuries inflicted in a collision. The boat was towing the ship up the river, and they came in contact with the cables of the ferry and tore it loose from the shore and the ferry boat was injured some $500. The court dismissed the libel, it having been shown that the wreck of the ferry company was held up with a line 60 feet from the surface in 150 feet from the end of the boat and 100 feet from the shore in water over 30 feet in depth, and in the vicinity of the approach of steaming vessels to the ferry dock, and was therefore a material obstruction to navigation.

The court said "the use of cables in the main entrance of ferries on the Willamette river appears to be a great convenience, if not a necessity, but it may be argued that they should not be used where they are an obstruction of navigation required or required in the case of bridges to yield some portion of their abstract right to moor vessels for the use of the ferry for the public convenience, but this is a question for legislature to determine, if the consent thereto is required for this purpose, it does not appear to have been used without objection, and where the power to use the cables as a matter of convenience exists before it, the cables as a material obstruction to navigation through it do not necessarily

WILL HAVE TO ATTEND COURT.

Officer Austin arrested C. H. Bergemeyer & Bauer on Seventh and East Park streets at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night for shouting two respectable ladies whom he alleged to have followed from First and Alder streets. When Judge Austin asked to be excused until Friday, the case was continued until Monday next. The important witnesses for the prosecution are supposed to be the two ladies who had been followed, and as they will be present yesterday the women did not need to prosecute the man after having him arrested, saying that they would rather pay the $5 costs of the fine than appear in the police court. They will however have to be on hand to-day as subpœnas have been issued for them.

MRS. TERWILLIGER'S WILL.

The will of Rhinanda Terwilliger, wife of James Terwilliger, who was ill of consumption, is an exemplification of a faded page of paper old and torn from a ledger, and the writing is in lead pencil. It bears the date of August 14, 1877, and the name of John Terwilliger, since deceased, and James J. Winterman.

Mrs. Terwilliger in it devised her household furniture in which she lived and 100 acres in the Terwilliger donation land claim to her daughter Julia A., now Mrs. T. M. E. Jackson and a cook which she brought across the plains to her son William O. Green, now dead. The land is now estimated to be worth $40,000.

MINOR CASES NOTED.

The grand jury yesterday indicted Ah Chung, charged with stealing $500 worth of tools from Pat Moorath.

In the state circuit court yesterday the John Barrett Co. sued E. Kroner for $300.25 for goods sold.

County Judge Catlin yesterday appointed Mrs. Catherine Scott administratrix of the estate of C. C. Scott. The estate is valued at $4000. Eli B. Morgan was appointed administrator of the estate of Jane E. Morgan.

A marriage license was granted yesterday for Earnest Kroner and Helen Wickenhelmer.

The plat of East Lynne on the east side of the river was filed yesterday.

WANT PAY FOR WORK DONE.

The suit of P. F. Brady and Simon Kissella against J. J. Searle and E. B. Dean has been transferred from the circuit court of Linn county to the United States circuit court here on petition of defendants. The suit is brought to recover the sum of $4000 alleged to be due plaintiffs for work performed on the Oregon Pacific railroad for the defendants between October 1888 and January 1889. In their answer defendants deny that the contract was completed or that the amount of excavating stated was done, and further that the work done was not according to the engineer's plans.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED.

The second demurrer to the indictment of C. F. Perkins for feloniously assaulting Gertie Keeper which was based on omission of the word felonious was sustained in the criminal court yesterday and the whole matter remanded to the grand jury.

A demurrer to the indictment was entered in the case of A. J. Cody, charged with mayhem. It will be argued to-morrow.

EXAMINING THE DOCUMENTS.

The county commissioners and County Judge Catlin yesterday spent considerable time examining the mass of documents submitted in connection with the application of the citizens of East Portland for a reduction of the assessment rate of farm on the Sisters street ferry and Morrison street bridge. Commissioner Dunn said yesterday that the decision would be announced in about a month.

WENT TO JAIL AS SURETY.

James Perdel and Joseph Price, charged with selling liquor to Indians on the Umatilla reservation, pleaded guilty in the United States district court yesterday and were fined $50 each. Neither of them have ready money to pay fines with and these were no exception, and as a result both are now in jail to serve out their time.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Charles Kroer an employe of Spaulding & Papworth wholesale butchers, swore out a complaint in the police court yesterday morning against Richard Krate a fellow workman, charging him of assault and battery.

STOLE A SEWING MACHINE.

A Chinaman named Ah Jong was arrested by Constable Simmons on complaint of a country man named Chang Chung yesterday, who charges him with the larceny of a sewing machine, valued at $10.

A PROLONGED SESSION.

The session of the police court yesterday afternoon lasted until nearly 5 o'clock. The cases taking up most of the court's time was that of the State vs. J. C. Heyns and John Wilson, charged with robbing a constable named Charles Brown in Mussellshell canon, Idaho, on the night of August 14, 1887. The following named were disposed of after which the above cases were taken up: Charles Pruitt and J. Jensen, drunk, $5 each; Peter Morse, simply drunk, $5; Riddle Williams, charged with drunkenness was discharged more out of pity for the wretch than anything else.

Brown the plaintiff in the case against Haynes and Wilson proved a very poor witness for the state by not remembering anything beyond the fact that he was in the saloon Saturday night. He did not recollect having seen the defendants in the place. He acknowledged having spent his money very freely stating that he came from Seattle with about $47 in his pocket for the purpose of seeing Portland's elephant.

W. F. Fine who sometimes sails under the alias of Dick Bond Fox, was the most important witness called by the prosecuting attorney. He testified to seeing Hunting and Brown in the Mussellshell saloon while Brown was playing on a card table in a very excited condition and alleged that he saw Haynes shake it, the latter's hand in the vicinity of the opening of Brown's pocket. Haynes seeing the witness excitedly said to him: "Get out shut the door. Don't say anything about this as I'll drive with you." Fine further testified that later on he saw Wilson take a purse out of Brown's pocket and he also made a proposition to divide the booty with the witness but the latter taking only 30 cents in cash gave no further proposition of a division was made.

The testimony introduced by the defense was mainly given by occupants of the saloon at the time of the alleged robbery who claimed that Brown and Fine were both drunk and that the evening previous to the arrest one of a party of eight others, Judge Lauzer took the money of Brown's and kept it for safe keeping until to-day when a check was to be used.

SMALL CASES NOTED.

The following cases were disposed of in Justice Tuttle's court:

By C. A. Bay against Mrs. Johnson for the possession of a horse and the latter for alleged goods.

S. Simmons & Co. against Bernard Rangeome for $65.60 with interest from May last, and costs and disbursements in the action.

C. F. Pearson against the Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Co. The plaintiff in his complaint alleges that he shipped an upright piano and engine over the defendant's lines to Mt. Hare station, and that machinery belonging to the engine and boiler to the value of $75 was also under the freight" was in defendant's hands.

Cox, Gardner & Dorr against S. H. Abrahams for $145.05 for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered.

Harvey Spaulding against Charles W. Elder for $75.75 for professional services.

Thomas J. Hunt against John Lenahan for $70. This amount, Hunt claims is due him on a $5.25 railroad ties sold the defendant at the rate of 14 cents per tie.

Rasmus O. Hara against Mrs. A. F. Anderson for the possession of a driving horse valued at $75. It appears that the horse was hired by Mrs. Anderson and not returned to the plaintiff.

TRIBUNAL BLOTTER.

CIRCUIT COURT NO. 1.

Trial of suit for alleged infringement on patent rights of manufacture of gloves.

The suit of James Perdel vs. Johnson et al. for $1,000 damages for false imprisonment, was dismissed at plaintiff's cost.

Thomas Mosier vs. Reuben Snow; case dismissed and papers will be drawn.

Frank Kaper vs. H. K. Hunsaker et al.; replevin; plaint amended by interlineation.

KNOCKED OUT IN ONE ROUND.

Bad Blood Between Tom Ward and Dave Campbell Leads to a Battle in Fight.

An Oregonian reporter encountered Tom Ward, who was recognized in police court yesterday in Police Judge Tausey's office looking as fine as the ladies of the Seventh Ward Social Club. His face was badly swollen, his eyes encircled by dark blue rings his forehead ornamented with a patch of court plaster and his left eye closed as tight as a drum. His face was badly swollen, his eyes encircled by dark blue rings his forehead ornamented with a patch of court plaster and his left eye closed as tight as a drum.

On being asked what was up for and who had hammered him so he said: "I am a prize fighter, just arrived in town and Dave Campbell who beat me up in great shape last night.

What did he do to you? was asked.

"What because I had publicly expressed an opinion as to his ability as a fighter and also as to his origin. I was roped in from a man purporting to come from a sporting man of Tacoma who offered to back him against Donovick or McCaffrey.

I went into Johnny Barry's saloon on the southeast corner of Second and Morrison streets for a glass of beer last night and while in there accosted Barry of sending the Pittsburg dispatch from San Francisco while he was there to make the public think that Campbell was some body. While drinking my beer Barry secretly locked the front door to prevent my escape I suppose, and Campbell walked in and just as I turned my head to see who it was coming, without a word I received a blow in the face that dazed me. I fell, and on regaining my feet, received another blow which gave me this cut over the eye. The assault was unprovoked, and I am going to have him arrested.

CAMPBELL'S VERSION OF THE AFFAIR.

The reporters desiring to get both sides of the fracas which is no credit to either of the men engaged in it sought out Campbell who said:

I was coming down Morrison street shortly after midnight this morning and when opposite Barry's saloon I heard loud talking. I stopped and was about to enter when I heard my name mentioned several times and I tell you it was not in very complimentary terms, either. I stopped at the door and listened a few moments and became satisfied that the speaker was Tom Ward who came up from San Francisco lately with Curtis Brown. I heard him say: "Dave is no good, he doesn't know anything about a fight. I'm the one for him. I'll be the name for him. The —— face is too pretty for a fighter."

I thought he had gone about far enough and stepped into the saloon. I walked on to where he was standing and said: "You have been making a talk about me behind my back. Now say what you have to say to my face." He retorted by saying: "What I have said is true." I then asked him if he knew what I thought of a man that would talk behind my back. If I was making my living by fighting, I would expect to be talked about, but as I am working and tending to my own business I did not relish his talk.

"Finally I said to him: I think you are a dirty cur. There is not a spark of manhood left in your worthless carcass. And I meant it. I stepped a little forward. As I did so I saw him reach for his hip pocket, as if to pull a gun. I came blindly led with my left striking him on the forehead and he began to climb to the floor. He came at me again and I stopped him with my right on the left of the nose. Not being satisfied that I had whipped him I followed up. I upper cut him which straightened him out. He then touched me and I understood he acknowledged that is the whole affair in a nutshell.

Two witnesses to the encounter corroborated Campbell in his statement.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officer Mott served the warrant sworn out by Wadsworth Campbell and the latter gave up $5 for his appearance in the police court this morning.

BEGINNING TO LOOK VERY DEFINITE.

The Contract for the Engine House of the Portland Cable Railway To Be Awarded.

Bids for the construction of an engine house 50 x 81 feet and a building 60 x 80 feet for a car house and general offices for the Portland Cable Railway Company were opened yesterday by the committee appointed for that purpose. The following are the three lowest bids: John Lobenstein $45,825; E. G. Combs $44,999; J. F. Bennett $44,000.

There were several other bids and objections of the work. But these two were the only ones for the whole.

Mr. Bennett's bid being the lowest the contract will probably be awarded him. The award is however delayed until the amount of rock which will have to be removed from Mount Scott, the excavation for the wheel pit and to ascertain which will be lost, and the contract let to-day.

Mr. Pearson, smith president of the company, states that the company have an agent now in San Francisco looking after such material as it will be necessary to procure there in material which can be procured here Portland dealers will be given the preference.

Work will be commenced at once and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible and the company will try to have cars ready to run by the time the road is ready.

HE MADE HIS LAST FIGHT.

Full Account of the Killing of the Unknown Thief and Desperado.

The Clackamas County Posse Have a Protracted and Exciting Chase—Overhauled—He Died Game—Unidentified Inquest.

THE OREGONIAN a few days ago contained an account of the killing of the unknown horse thief, safe-breaker and desperado, by a posse from Oregon City, near Fairview, in Multnomah county. The Oregon City Courier of Thursday furnishes the following full particulars of the tragical affair:

Mr. Moody is the deputy sheriff, and is one of the men who started out to follow the thief one week ago, since which time they have scarcely slept. The other members of the party were T. F. Randall, J. K. Morris, Charles Noblett and Chauncey Ferguson. They first met him in the vicinity of Cougar mountain. They saw him riding rapidly toward them, and Moody opened fire. But in exceeding the first shot the thief fell over his horse, and quickly got behind a tree. All the horses of both parties stampeded and a fusillade ensued, but the thief managed to crawl away and slide down the canyon.

THEY STRUCK THE TRAIL.

They first struck his trail Thursday afternoon near the lower Sandy bridge and followed it rapidly for about ten miles. The party got off their road, and lost about half an hour. After making the road they met their man coming out of the mountains, where he had stolen a watch and a gun from a settler. In meeting the party he opened fire, which was returned by Moody. The firing scared the horses of both parties to stampede.

HE WAS MET AGAIN.

The next day was largely spent in seeking the lost horses, which they found at night. A party of searchers met him again that night. While they were lying in wait he approached, and they said "Halt." He said, "Who are you and where are you?" and began firing. They were lying behind trees and returned fire, and without hardly getting side of a tree, fired shot after shot. Ferguson, Thomas and Nimpower constituted this party, but he escaped them.

The thief was not again discovered till Monday morning, when it was again found near Cougar mountain. He was tracked to Troutdale on the O. R. & N., but returned toward the mountain. In the vicinity of Fairview he stole two chickens which he roasted by a clearing fire and ate. This, as near as the party can ascertain, is the first time he had to eat since Thursday.

THE DEADLY FUSILADE.

Tuesday he was located as being in a piece of woods about two or three miles square, and that night a large party was stationed at different points around this wood to intercept his coming. Near Fairview where his trail turned into the woods there was stationed T. F. Randall, J. K. Morris, a Mr. Fleming and Mr. Hunter and son. The latter alley to Grant's. Here he was expected to appear, for he had twice been traced to this point where he turned off from the road. But were the party doomed to disappointment. About half past eleven Tuesday night he appeared in the woods near the road coughing a sort of forced cough. An attempt being made to fire the next moment to break cover, but the party watching had flow and waited. He next fired revolver and shortly afterward the frightened animal and he came before him. At this time he was mounted on a bay horse. Suppose the animal did. He came out to the road, and after the first shot from the fence and started him with his gun. Being in open view with Fleming, he undertook to know if he was him. The latter replied "no, but you must." Hunter seems to have been afraid to do this. Running then saw him at the road and fired with a double-barreled breech loading shotgun containing twenty-one buck shot, apparently without effect. The thief dashed up the road across the track firing both barrels at the fair. Three other shots were also fired by other of the party in pursuit, all without checking him.

DEATH OF THE DESPERADO.

By this time he had crossed the railroad track, and was approaching Randall and Ferris. The former fired at him with a Winchester without effect. Morris then took a shot, but still he kept on his way, and had just come opposite Randall when Logg remembered that which tumbled him over the short distance effect just above the knee, shattering the bone. He fell on his face, then turned on hand and groaned inwardly. "Randall, Randall," cried Ferris, "he's got the gun in the air." The boys were by the time gathering in on him. Randall had ripped around and held a head and said: "He is plucky as hell to get us into his hands, after give him one." It will stop that game, for he is such a cat misery it will cease to. Two more shots were fired. The second ripped all together about thirty shots were fired in the space of about one minute. He died in ten minutes after.

HE DIES.

The party had intended to return by train to Oregon City Wednesday morning, but there was some talk of an inquest, and they went to look for Coroner Holmes, who lived there to say the man was dead. A buck was organized, and the party came down across by the Sellwood road, reaching Oregon City just after noon. The buck had been left a piece behind, but drove in at 1:30 bringing the dead man. The body was taken to an undertaking establishment where the effects were removed and an examination made.

MATERIAL FOR AN INQUEST.

Should such an appearance there is found by Mayor Caufield, who did all he could to save his victim's life. There must be almost fifty, a large portion of which entered the left thigh, the other. They range from the knee to the head, entering in a bunch, showing the most of the wound, that in others the shot was very small. He was well built, weighing about 160 pounds, and had a well-developed chest. He had a high and well proportioned head, with rounded chest. His hair was dark brown and was parted nearly in the middle. He was about 25 years of age.

BUSTLE IN THE HOPFIELDS.

Growers Looking After Their Vines—Paying Saloon Restriction.

PUYALLUP, March 28.—The exceptionally mild weather of the past week has benefitted by taken advantage of by the hop-growers of this valley, as all are busy looking after their vines and preparing land for new plots. E. Meeker is shipping a large quantity of hop roots to Kent, where the bulk of his crop will be this season.

The city council at its last meeting passed an ordinance, which was approved by the mayor, prohibiting the sale of liquor between the hours of 10 o'clock P. M. on Saturday, and 4 A. M. on Monday. Each sale will be considered a separate offense, and may be punished by a fine of not less than $25 or more than $100.

This week has seen an unusual number of newcomers to town, most of the Eastern states being represented. The greater number are in search of acre tracts.

The work on the new Tacoma road is progressing rapidly. This road when finished will be one of the best for traveling on in the territory.

As indicative of the increasing value of property here it may be stated that the assessed valuation of the property within the city limits amounts this year to close on $400,000.

JOSEPHINE COUNTY.

Representative Howard is building a new residence at Grant's Pass.

Everything is growing nicely, the recent rains having done much good.

Judge Colvig's condition is not as favorable as it was, he now being afflicted with heart trouble.

Editor Hurlburt, of Georgetown, Cal., is paying his mother, Mrs. E. Turner, of this county, a visit.

M. A. Tyrrell, lately from the Willamette valley, has purchased a farm in this county, and becomes a permanent resident.

The sale of personal property belonging to the estate of Charles H. Bench, deceased, was well attended, and fair prices were realized.

Dr. Jessup, of Grant's Pass, had one of his legs badly hurt in slipping on the railroad track one day last week. He now navigates on crutches.

D. W. Hardin has sold his brickyard at Grant's Pass to T. F. Judson and E. Wilson, lately from Del Norte county, Cal. The price paid was $3,000.

Rev. Mr. Jones, of Drain, who had been appointed to succeed Rev. J. S. Mecham at Grant's Pass, is recovering from an attack of varioloid at the first named place.

The remains of J. P. Mansfield, who died at St. Johns Falls, W. T., last week, have been exhumed and reinterred in the Kerby-ville cemetery. Frank Dessinger returned with the body last week.

L. Vanzee has sold his store building at Grant's Pass to Hy. Dewese for $1,500, who will occupy it as a drug store, and others. Mr. Vanzee is selling his goods cheap preparatory to quitting for business.

The Big Klamath ditch is being cleaned for the summer campaign.

W. D. Waddock is now living at Tule lake and acting as postmaster there.

Some snow has fallen recently, but it has been more of a benefit than otherwise.

Cattle never looked better. There are plenty of fat beeves on the range even now.

John A. Miller and J. C. Fike, of Sprague river precinct, are in Rogue River valley on a visit.

Captain D. J. Ferree has a second control of the steamer May Bower, plying on Little Klamath lake.

A lively rush of immigration is setting in toward this section. Strangers are already becoming numerous.

Logan & Mickle on have manufactured a propeller wheel for the new boat shortly, which will be launched soon.

There has been plenty of stormy weather during the past few weeks, which has been of great benefit to growing crops and the range.

Jesse Walker and family, lately of Denton county, have arrived at Linkville. Mr. Walker is an experienced teacher and will locate here permanently.

J. W. Parker, lately of Bush o territory, and also well known in Modoc county, Cal., has located at Linkville for the practice of his profession, being an experienced lawyer.

The Star says that word has been received from Brigadier-General Sigain that the H. H. Co. company organized in Linkville would be mustered in as a cavalry company under his command.

Rules of the Anaconda Smelter.

Have Interesting Matter.

Quite a number of Butte people went down to Anaconda yesterday to take a look at the rules of the smelter building. A large force of men is at work there carrying away the debris. The extent to which the machinery and masonry have been damaged can not yet be ascertained. Those of the Bruckner roasters which have been examined do not seem to show as much injury as had been expected. The concentrator at the lower works has been shut down since the fire and will remain so for a few days, until arrangements at the upper works can be completed. The silver mill was also shut down at the time of the fire, but it was started up on Saturday at noon. The mill continued yesterday, but was expected to be shut down to-day again. The people at Anaconda have not one opinion as to the fire. They believe it was incendiary, and the criminal would very likely have rough treatment if discovered, judging by the expressions that are heard. The Anaconda folks are quite confident that the great company will lose no time in rebuilding.

From Chinkapin to the Columbia.

Recently Elliott Cough was come to the conclusion that the cheapest route to market for the products of the country tributary to Chinkapin was practicable as the citizens have determined for they have secured the services of an engineer named Barclay to endeavor to find a new route with economic grade. Thomas L. Nixon who is largely interested in Chinkapin property, and who was back in the early days of the Ellensburgh & Cowlitz railroad project, informed a Tacoma reporter a few days that he "feared the existence of numerous creeks and the unevenness of the country would make the building of a railroad a difficult and expensive task."

Retaliation at Victoria.

Victoria Times.

An English sloop of twenty tons burden was blown over to Port Townsend from Victoria by the storm and requested permission to obtain fishing bait. The acting collector refused, as the British authorities have not allowed American fishermen on the Atlantic coast to have bait at their ports. This is the first instance of a fishery retaliation on the Pacific coast. British fishermen however, get bait at Mitchell's bay, San Juan island, unknown to the American authorities.

THE TERRITORIAL CODE.

What Has Been Expended and What Will Become of It.

Governor Semple and His Successor—An Army of Notaries Public—Something About Peace—C. B. Wright's Tacoma Investments.

SEATTLE, March 28.—There will doubtless be some trouble one of these days over the doings of the code commission of Washington territory, which is still in session, or supposed to be in session at Olympia. The officers were appointed by Governor Semple, about a year ago, and are W. H. Doolittle, of Tacoma; H. J. Snively, of Yakima; James Wickersham, of Spokane, and A. E. Isaacs, of Walla Walla. Snively and Isham are democrats pure and simple; Doolittle is said to be a Voorhees republican, or, in other words, supported Voorhees against the regular republican nominee, and Wickersham was elected probate judge on the people's ticket against Harris, the republican nominee, in Pierce county two years ago. The latter's term of office as probate judge expired this month. Doolittle was formerly of Cook, but settled in Tacoma as a practicing attorney after his appointment from Cook county. Besides his appointment as one of the code commissioners, he is also receiver of the Tacoma land office, and is also engaged in other lucrative practice. Isaacs is a lawyer of Walla Walla, and is also interested in Yakima property. Isham is a lawyer of Seattle, perhaps, and is also interested in Yakima property. Snively is a lawyer of Ellensburgh, and is also interested in Yakima property. Wickersham is a lawyer of Spokane Falls, and is also interested in Yakima property. Isham is said to have done most of the work, as the commission, in having an office in the capitol building at Olympia. Doolittle is the chairman. The work was distributed among the members after they organized. Snively was to furnish the district judge's practice, Snively the criminal, Wickersham the pinochle, and Isham the civil and criminal practice in justice's courts. The latter has had general supervision of the work in arranging for the code preparatory to laying the result of the labors of the commission before the legislature, as provided in the act creating the commission. As the legislature has been in session over a month, and the territory is soon to become a state, it is interesting to know what is to become of the report, unless it is handed in to the convention convening on the 4th of July for some of the laws to be enacted for the state of Washington, or else laid over the first legislature that is called. An appropriation of $5,000 was placed at the disposal of the commission.

"How much of the money has been expended and how much of the work has been completed?" I asked of one of the territorial officials whom I met at the Occidental today.

"The books of the territorial treasurer will show how much has been expended," he replied, "and it will take about two months to copy to complete the labors of the commission."

What is the pay of the members?"

"Ten dollars a day when they work, but at least one of the members does not understand his duty much for drawing it."

"I see you have orders certified on the governor for salaries and per diem," said Mr. Doolittle. The last order was in favor of Mr. Snively for $60. The same member was asked by Governor Semple to draw orders for his salary and per diem, but when the time came for him to draw the orders he refused to do so, and the commission with this part of the code work failed to be compensated in the low. It was left the governor to remove him, I suppose.

I met Governor Semple on the street one day, who looked well and is anxious to meet his constituents as soon as possible, for the next [illegible] Governor Semple [illegible] Washington [illegible] Democratic [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Democrat [illegible] Democrat

GROWING CENTRALIA.

A Town That Has Doubled Its Population in Six Months.

It Now Has 1500 Inhabitants and 132 New Houses—Its Railroad and Manufacturing Future—Enterprises Established.

Special Correspondence of The Oregonian.

CENTRALIA, March 28.

On the fourth day of last July there was not a new house or roof to be seen in Centralia. Even county W. T. up to that time the growth of this town had not begun. The vast number of acres of this section gave employment to enough men who with their families made a total population of about 700 which since last July has actually doubled. The increase was not noticeable until about four months ago. The erection of new buildings began about six months since and the changed appearance of Centralia is the remark of neighboring towns railroad men and travelers.

As the day passenger train pulls through Centralia the windows of the cars are crowded with peering faces which vie to compliment by exclamations loud about as follows: "What's the matter with Centralia? A real boom has struck this town." "Here are more new houses than in any town in the Northwest in proportion to its inhabitants etc." But the acme of statements and inquiries came from the lips of a plain "sonz looking orderly man on Thursday last, as the train was pulling out of Centralia for Portland. "This gentleman said: "Here are a line of new houses about a mile in distance. There must be good cause for this growth. Now, what is it? Can it be the new coal fields or the new railroad?"

The whole proposition is confined in this nutshell sort of a statement. Just think of it. A town commencing with 700 people doubling in less than six months and building 132 new houses in that time. As established statistics have determined that there is one adult out of every five these new houses suggest that each adult among the newcomers had built a new house. This cannot be true though for here is the old men or citizens that help build the new houses; yet the greater majority have been built by new men.

One entire new addition has been built up in the past six weeks by the Washington Land and Improvement Company and those who have bought property of this company. The details of this work are shown in another column. It was the company that set the ball agoing and they are like the generality of the human family viz: this doing work for the big money that comes from these enterprises, but in this case it is not a "boom" that starts it.

The foundation for this growth comes from the fact first that Centralia is a coming railroad center; second that the very best and the greatest quantity of coal is found right at the very threshold of Centralia. The most startling statement is yet to come which is that Anthracite coal in paying quantities is found here. The staid geologist and gray haired scientist will read this statement drop his paper and declare it untrue. He will argue that the books declare it a physical impossibility to find Anthracite coal in these Western coal measures. But books or no books Centralia is here and in addition coal stone, or blacksmith's coal, or steel coal the usual Western bituminous and even lignite—all are found within a radius of fifteen miles.

Me thinks we hear the scientific croaker certainly declare. Now I know it is not true. Well when your doubts give way to the knowledge that strange things do happen then cease all arguing from the books but come to Centralia and investigate for yourself. You will find every statement true herein made and then you will indeed and in truth believe that building is many or more times denser in Centralia than in any town in the Northwest. Even strangers were buttonholed together to learn the grand following of the other fellow's opinion for the growth will appear.

A RAILROAD CENTER.

THE STARTING POINT OF THE GRAYS HARBOR RAILWAY.

Centralia is located at the junction of the Chehalis and Skookumchuck rivers each with water enough to utilize the vast forests of timber among their banks by floating logs to mills. This city is ninety five miles north of Portland and fifty miles south of Tacoma. In many respects the thought comes creeping in that Centralia is situated very much as Galesburg Illinois which is the midway railroad and manufacturing junction between Chicago and Quincy Illinois. Galesburg has a population 10,000.

It is about the same distance from the Mississippi river that Centralia is from the ocean at Gray's harbor. The distance from Chicago to Galesburg is with a very few miles the same distance that Centralia is from Portland. Likewise the distance from Galesburg to Quincy Illinois or Burlington Iowa is identical almost with the distance from Centralia to Tacoma and Seattle. Galesburg is next to Moline in Illinois in manufactories, and like Centralia it is in the heart of the coal fields. By following this theory—or facts—it must be a determined croaker who can not see a wonderful bright dazzling future for this bright budding Centralia.

The Illinois town lies on the main line of the great Chicago Burlington & Quincy railway and is a junction city from which one or all of the many feeders of the Chicago Burlington & Quincy.

Centralia is on the main line of the great transcontinental railway, the Northern Pacific and here is the beginning of the Centralia City Harbor railway known as the Tacoma Olympia railway.

How do we know that Centralia is to be the junction or terminus of these railways?

Well sometimes an individual may know what he is not to tell but the public generally knows it in the fact that the Western Improvement Company which is nominally a part of the railway company that will build to Gray's harbor have bought the land immediately north of the city and these lots of lots less than six weeks ago. The company is so doing one of the best hotels in Washington Territory. It is building rest directly over the Northern Pacific and

SKETCHES FROM REAL LIFE.

A Modern Slavery More Binding and In famous Than That of Attic Bellinia Days

A ruddy but badly dressed woman walked into the recorder's office in Cincinnati the other afternoon She was remarkably stout short and both in manner and appearance showed her culling She walked up to the desk of the chattel mortgage clerk handed him a paper and a quarter and walked out again

She must have bought another slave observed a bystander

What do you mean?

That she is a slave trader that her traffic is not so extensive as that of the ante bellum slave traders but even more infamous Examine that document she has just filed and you will understand better

The document was a chattel mortgage in favor of the woman The consideration on her side was $50 The other name which appeared on the mortgage was that of a young girl On the face of it it was nothing more than a chattel mortgage. But there was another than a surface reading The chattel mortgage was as much a bond of slavery as was the deed executed under the law of ancient Greece by which a man could sell himself into slavery for debt

There was one clause in the mortgage mentioned which revealed the true inwardness of it the words written under the printed word Schedule Here is what they are

One trunk and contents one seal sacque one plush dress, one sateen dress three cloth dresses, one flannel dress four cashmere dresses four corsets fifteen suits of underwear, one other muff and collar, five pair of shoes, stockings ribbons trinkets, etc the above being all my wardrobe kept and to be kept at — Broadway

All my wardrobe they stitch of clothing every possession she had in the world, held in the iron clutch of the landlady and to be held until the girl could pay off this debt—until she could wrest enough money from the rapacious fingers that snatched at almost every cent of her dollars earned in shame and degradation

With these articles in some one else possession with not a shred of clothing she could call her own for her to attempt to leave the house without the permission of the mistress of it would be for her to commit felony—to steal another's belongings If she incurred the displeasure of the landlady she could be turned almost naked into the streets without a cent to buy either food, clothing or lodging She is absolutely in the power of this slave dealer who can sell her to another slave-dealer—as is often done Or should another slave dealer wish to purchase her, she can do so by paying off or buying the chattel mortgage and in no other way

AGRICULTURE AND MINING.

These Handmaids of National Wealth and Progress Coexistent Here

To an Extent Unknown Elsewhere in the World—Both Should Be Equally Fostered as a Matter of Public Policy.

In view of the enormous immigration from all points to the Pacific coast, of which it is now well known Oregon will receive a large proportion, I venture to submit a comparison of the two great and leading industries of human life, so singularly combined in this state that each may be placed in its proper position and receive its proper share of public confidence and patronage.

I know very well, from experience, there are many men in Oregon—not of Oregon, too, for that matter—men who earnestly desire the welfare of the state, who think there is a natural antagonism between agriculture and mining. How they ever came to form an idea so entirely at variance with the experience of history I cannot imagine. Yet, there exist very objectionable prejudices. The time has now arrived when one of the sides of this question should be understood and abandoned.

At the same time, though I strongly uphold the mining interest, I do not wish to be misunderstood or placed in a false position. In all I have written on the varied and phenomenal resources of Oregon to the outside world, as against any other country in the world to the opposite point, I have always given agriculture the position of honor. No honest writer can do otherwise unless he be willing to make a fool of himself. In all countries where the people have any degree of civilization, agriculture has justly been regarded as the foundation of all other progress; the initial point, in fact, from which all other industries in due time occur.

But mining, either as a business or science, is no less important or beneficial, either to a people or community, because it is a fluctuating industry. It is, in fact, a stepping-stone to agriculture. As a source of material wealth and greatness it is second to none; gradual, as a factor of individual success, like commerce, manufactures or art, mining can neither be ignored nor neglected without serious loss—that is, if we term resources exist in a country as they exist in Oregon. Where such is the case, then mining, without doubt, presents equal, oftentimes greater possibilities of immediate and lasting prosperity than any other branch of human industry.

If then we have mineral resources in the most positive form in Oregon, co-existent with great agricultural resources and equally phenomenal in their extent, is it not the commonest wisdom of life to aid their development in every possible way and in the shortest possible time?

In dealing with interests of great future immensity, to spring from great natural resources, whatever their character may be a country must tell, and keep telling, on the side world what it has if it wants the world to come and invest. To do otherwise is a criminal trifling with truth and the evidence of history stating all nations of the earth. Oregon has rich and mexican-like mineral resources; let the world know the truth and those resources eventually will prove to be what similar resources have been in measure past to other countries.

What has England realized from her tin, copper, iron, salt and coal mines? What Europe, Asia and Africa from the gold, silver and diamond mines? What American at large from her mines of the same kind, when they were the same kind? Simply endless importance, endless wealth, endless progress. If we limit the range of the question and bring it within the personal experience of our own individual selves in late years we may ask, what have California, Nevada, Montana and Idaho added there first values? Who can say the answer is not the same in every particular, that interest does not center in the mines of a country developing their extent and value, and have any with the issues for decades?

What can a new state or country boast that the produce of Montana in precious and other metals during the last fiscal year amounted to more than $60,000,000? Who would believe, two years ago, that during that time any one could or should go into the northern division of Idaho, and from the Coeur d'Alene district alone take out of its mines $10,000,000? Or that Oregon could be created in the twinkling of an eye by those two events exclusively? The world knowing the fact, however, or not, was, at least, sure to the settlers, and left their money there in confidence.

From the northern boundary, where the Pend Oreille mines, in the extreme northern boundary of the state, Oregon has been proved to possess the same, or in fact more mineral area than her neighbors, in gold, silver, lead and copper, and that she is less favored to her—if there be neighbors, she won't advertise her own mines, and if they remain unknown to the world in fact unbelieved in by her own people. Who is to blame for this criminal indifference?

At this point comes the secret to the people of Oregon, enforced by the experience of the world, which just at this time they most need to learn. Unlike their neighbors on all sides, it has not been their fate to be moved to intense exertion of ambition or enterprise by the sudden or gradual disclosure of enormous mineral wealth, as it exists in ledges of gold, silver, copper, etc. They are therefore, as a people, altogether indifferent to the opportunities such disclosures offer for general or personal wealth through the judicious investment of a small combined or individual capital. Both in city and country, as traders and farmers, they have led such a quiet, slothful, sluggish, yet successful life, that it has benumbed or destroyed the vitality and keenness of the true American citizen, and there can be no sense—anything of importance or value—to the "dollar and cent" surroundings and existence. By reason of fair continued success for years, they have lost all sense of the necessity of exertion, and need severely shaking up.

Yet, these people, from Portland to Rogue river in one direction, from The Dalles to the Umpqua river in another, without knowing it, are surrounded by such vast mineral wealth that its coming development will work a seen and unseen revolution equal, perhaps, to those created at different periods, by Cripple and Nevada. Then the commercial and pastoral values, who from the force of circumstances have unhappily attached a false value to mines, will be swept from existence by the more generous and enlightened energy and vitality of those who have learned to appreciate the true value of both. What the more than one overthrown out of the way to-day, exemplifies of millions in all of our twice as much more to-morrow. Then will come on the grand harvest time of the country, when the state at large, under the auspices of men will prove her self to be what she is, the richest and most favored spot on the earth, and the people the most prosperous and happy.

The Umpqua river is a good example. Under the discouragements of the late unfortunate, the simple, honest, open truth—followed by physical evidences and actual products as fresh and new as the end of the state to the other. It may be said with safety there is no other county in the world where the same wealth and greatness, as exist in the mineral counties, in some portion of which can be found in great variety, and in such close proximity to each other as in Douglas county, as they do in Oregon. A very few years in the future can be drawn to the

[illegible]

And yet, if the people of Douglas county would be content to go to sleep for a few years, the values of its mines would be found to be equal to the resources of Oregon, and there, as elsewhere, in a year from to-day millions more would be required, and readily furnished, too, to put to the grand work to compel them. We have, I confess, no vast beer breweries, as in Chicago, to tempt the rapidity of cash men in the Rothschildes, the charm and value of which is simply a quick return of interest. If such men would only come to Oregon and wait a little for returns, they would find lots of things of far greater permanent value to themselves and the world, and no better or grander field to endow it with all things needed to enrich and elevate our race.

So far, I have spoken only of the existence of the precious and baser metals necessary to human existence and progress. True, in the parts of the state we have yet advanced but to a partial development of either. But that in principle is of little consequence to us so far as the question of actual existence goes. Beyond a doubt I have proven the mineral values of Oregon, and how and how large, in a general way. Now, as to the extent of mining and mechanical industry as ever Cornwall was in her palmiest days. The men or community of men in Oregon who turn a deaf ear to the truth and stubbornly refuse to aid the coming of her glory, are unjust to their children and their children's children, and simply unworthy, nothing more or less, of the great heritage they enjoy.

Some say I am an enthusiast. So some said when I first wrote on Coeur d'Alene, and disregarded me like a pickpocket for seeking the Sierra Nevada mine, in preference to some of its great neighbors, as one of the best, if not the best silver-lead mine in America, two years before it proved itself so. Twenty though still not thoroughly developed, the Portland owners have selected ores from it rich enough in mineral and gravel enough in character to send to the Paris exhibition. These ores must be pretty good to be selected for the critical examination they will receive from the French savans and experts.

So far from being enthusiastic, before the time for examination really comes, there is, perhaps, no man more critical and exacting than I am when searching for the right thing in the mines I examine. I plodded over the hills of Coeur d'Alene until I found the impress of the divine hand stamped on the formation from Wolf Lodge to the boundary line of Montana, a distance of sixty-five miles. Other prominent experts from this city and the East followed my footsteps and condemned the country, leaving me alone to fight its battles. I stood up boldly for the hillsides, and finally came out all right, even instead of my predictions—so over the hills and valleys of Oregon I have plodded alone, in search of the same divine inducement. At every point I have been, especially in the Wallowa and Grant districts, I have found that indorsement and not my conviction of future success in both have been agreed to. I know, beyond gainsaying, the Master Workman, as the rocks, as do the pyramids to Egypt, as I know the glories of creation, in the one case as in the other, must be fulfilled. If this is being an enthusiast, I can only put another name per less, than science and common sense permit. I say Oregon, all in all, is the greatest country in the world and I rest sure on the prediction made its fulfillment values, become sooner or later, according to the spirit of her people, it must come.

GROWTH OF THE DIVORCE RATE.

Springfield, Mass., Republican.

It is difficult to discover, in Colonel Wright's tabulated statistics relating to marriage and divorce in the United States, any general rule of action about which the figures may be grouped. Notorious laxity of law offers an explanation of the prevalence of divorce in some cases, and possibly the loose practices of the courts under laws not so lax will explain many other cases; but the rule here is subject to general variations. Illinois is notoriously loose in the statute regard of the marriage relation. And in the twenty years following 1869 no state in the Union records as many divorces as Illinois. They number 39,702 against 30,505 for Ohio, 25,365 for Indiana and 18,854 for Michigan. These states take the lead, although the population of any one of them is exceeded by that of New York or Pennsylvania, and three states have each a greater population than Illinois. Rhode Island and Connecticut have liberal divorce laws and their record is less, but no worse than that of many other states. But while the statistics do not establish an invariable and absolute rule in this respect, it is none the less clear that the alarming increase in the number of divorces in many of the states can be traced directly to the careless consideration of the facts and in all the states most probably incline fly to the same cause.

Grouping some of the states by sections, we find certain peculiarities, more interesting than valuable. The New England states do not appear in a flattering light:

So far, I have spoken only of the existence of the precious and baser metals necessary to human existence and progress. True, in the parts of the state we have yet advanced but to a partial development of either. But that in principle is of little consequence to us so far as the question of actual existence goes. Beyond a doubt I have proven the mineral values of Oregon, how and how large, in a general way. Now, as to the extent of mining and mechanical industry as ever Cornwall was in her palmiest days. The men or community of men in Oregon who turn a deaf ear to the truth and stubbornly refuse to aid the coming of her glory, are unjust to their children and their children's children, and simply unworthy, nothing more or less, of the great heritage they enjoy.

Some say I am an enthusiast. So some said when I first wrote on Coeur d'Alene, and disregarded me like a pickpocket for seeking the Sierra Nevada mine, in preference to some of its great neighbors, as one of the best, if not the best silver-lead mine in America, two years before it proved itself so. Twenty though still not thoroughly developed, the Portland owners have selected ores from it rich enough in mineral and gravel enough in character to send to the Paris exhibition. These ores must be pretty good to be selected for the critical examination they will receive from the French savans and experts.

So far from being enthusiastic, before the time for examination really comes, there is, perhaps, no man more critical and exacting than I am when searching for the right thing in the mines I examine. I plodded over the hills of Coeur d'Alene until I found the impress of the divine hand stamped on the formation from Wolf Lodge to the boundary line of Montana, a distance of sixty-five miles. Other prominent experts from this city and the East followed my footsteps and condemned the country, leaving me alone to fight its battles. I stood up boldly for the hillsides, and finally came out all right, even instead of my predictions—so over the hills and valleys of Oregon I have plodded alone, in search of the same divine inducement. At every point I have been, especially in the Wallowa and Grant districts, I have found that indorsement and not my conviction of future success in both have been agreed to. I know, beyond gainsaying, the Master Workman, as the rocks, as do the pyramids to Egypt, as I know the glories of creation, in the one case as in the other, must be fulfilled. If this is being an enthusiast, I can only put another name per less, than science and common sense permit. I say Oregon, all in all, is the greatest country in the world and I rest sure on the prediction made its fulfillment values, become sooner or later, according to the spirit of her people, it must come.

OBSTRUCTIONS TO NAVIGATION.

Ferry Cable—When Obstruction.

United States District Court, District of Oregon. Thursday, March 28, 1889.

The Imperial and S. G. Reed—The Albina Ferry Company, libellant. No. 2,292. Suit for collision.

(1) COLLISION—TUG AND TOW. A tug employed by a ship to move her from her anchorage in the Willamet river to a dock in East Portland, under the direction and control of the pilot in charge of the ship is not liable for injury caused by a collision of such vessel with another; in such case the tug and tow are but one vessel and that one is the tow.

(2) OBSTRUCTION TO NAVIGATION. A wire cable, used as a guide across the Willamet river by the ferry boat of the Albina Ferry Company, when held up within 11½ feet of the surface of the water, at its feet from the end of the boat and 146 feet from the shore, in water over 30 feet in depth, in the vicinity of the approach of sea going vessels, to the living dock in East Portland, is a material obstruction to navigation and unlawful, unless sanctioned by the legislature.

DEADY, J.

This suit is brought by the libellant, the Albina Ferry Company, to recover damages in the sum of $800, alleged to have been caused by a collision of the ship Imperial, with a steam tug, towing by the steamboat S. G. Reed, with the ferryboat Veto No. 2.

The facts appear to be as follows: Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon of September 14, 1888, Albert Betts, a Wallamet river pilot, was employed to dock the Imperial at the living dock in East Portland, and for that purpose obtained from the claimant, the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, the use of the steamboat S. G. Reed and crew.

The Imperial was lying at anchor in the river some distance below Montgomery dock, in Albina, and to the west side of the river. She is 208 feet and her beam 45 feet, she had just arrived from Wilmington, California, in ballast, and was 17 feet out of water and 13 feet in.

At the time of the collision the Veto No. 2 was being run by the libellant, a corporation formed under the laws of Oregon, under a license, as a ferryboat between her slip or landing on the east side of the Wallamet, in Albina, just south of river lot 19, and her landing on the west side of the same, on lots 29 and 27, in the Couch addition to Portland, the width of the river between such landings being about 1,300 feet. North of the ferry slip the river front is occupied for about 1,000 feet by the Allen & Lewis warehouse and the Montgomery dock. About 100 feet south of the ferry slip is Shaver's wharf and Irving's dock is about 350 feet south of the same.

In the space between the ferry slip and Shaver's wharf is a small floating wood wharf or pontoon, with a watering-hose, on it. The ferryboat is run on a steel wire cable fastened to the shore at either end. The cable is supported by and passes over a sheave or block held in a hanger 18 inches above the water, which is fastened to the under-side of the guard on the upper side and at each end of the boat, about 18 feet from the end of the same.

The Veto, when in its slip on the east side, extends about 40 feet into the water beyond the dock line, and immediately off the outer end thereof the water is from 25 to 30 feet deep and deepens to the middle of the river.

At the time of the collision the cable off the end of the boat was within 10 feet and 5 inches of the surface of the water, and at 18 feet beyond it, it was within 11½ feet.

The Reed made fast to the Imperial on her starboard side, and the two vessels, propelled by the wheel of the former, and worked as one, under the charge of Pilot Betts, started up-stream, heading east-yard for the lower end of Montgomery dock. The wind was blowing from the west, according to the report of the signal officer, at the rate of six miles an hour, and to avoid being blown over to the west side, the pilot purposed to keep the vessel under the lee of the craft on the east side.

When the vessel was within 50 feet of the dock line, at the lower end of the Montgomery dock, she was straightened up the river and the engine on the Reed stopped, to lessen the headway, but the vessel continued to drift slowly west, at the rate of 50 feet [illegible] up the slip the engine was [illegible] up stream, making [illegible] feet, [illegible] moved along in the direction of Irving's dock at not exceeding two miles an hour.

At the time the ferry boat was at her east landing, under the charge of a collector and engineer who had seen the Imperial coming up the river, some [illegible] 2,000 feet away, and thought, as the [illegible] was going to stop, before [illegible] Veto No. 2 was ready to be docked. There were [illegible] passengers on the boat desirous [illegible] and [illegible] was [illegible] and [illegible] the Imperial, and for that reason [illegible] the engineer [illegible] and [illegible] the collector [illegible] the Imperial [illegible] the pontoon on which the [illegible] landing. As the Imperial came in front of the slip the engineer saw her, and seeing, as he says, [illegible] the opportunity to get the ferry to the [illegible] on board, ran into the engine room and commenced to work his way to the slip, which the collector says he could.

As to [illegible] the disputed question in the case, it is alleged by the libellant, that the Veto No. 2 was [illegible] against the [illegible] of the ferry boat and pushed it [illegible] up stream, [illegible] up stream [illegible]. One cable broke, which [illegible] allowed the [illegible] to pass on to the dock. On the other hand, the claimants insist that the Imperial [illegible] struck the ferry boat at all and was [illegible] to her [illegible] twenty feet [illegible] but that in passing along at that distance or more in front of her, the keel of the Imperial [illegible] the cable of the ferry boat and [illegible] the latter [illegible] and [illegible] parted or pulled loose from its fastenings on the bank.

Neither the collector nor the engineer of the ferry boat can say that the Imperial struck her, because they were not in a position to see whether she did or not. The collector was on shore, and I suppose the house on the ferry boat obstructed his view. However, without explanation, he says he could not see whether the ship [illegible] the boat or not. The engineer was in the engine room and could not see, but he says he felt a jar which he thought was caused by a collision of the vessels.

One witness called by the libellant, Marshal Peterson, who was engaged in shingling a small wheel house to the south, and in the immediate vicinity of the ferry boat, says the ship struck the upper of the ferry boat and parted it asunder, John Lund who was called by the libellant, and was at a shingling on the same house, says the ship was fifty or seventy feet from the boat [illegible] the time he [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] Arthur Bell, who was on Shaver's wharf at the time says the ship did not touch the ferry boat, but that she was between [illegible] and thirty feet away from her. Albert Betts, the pilot in charge of the Imperial, says the ship was twenty or thirty feet away from the ferry boat—and that a the latter came abreast of the ship's forerigging, he saw the ferry boat commence to move away, when he knew that the ship's keel had cleared the cable. He immediately rang orders to back the engine, but before the ship came to, [illegible] parted her and the ship passed on.

On this testimony it must be found that the ship did not collide with the boat, and that the parted outside of her at least twenty feet. There is scarcely any room for doubt on the subject. Peterson appears to have been very much alarmed for his own safety, and must be mistaken.

Several independent witnesses [illegible] the cable as it [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
